

Fork Kent Maine

Fork Kent Maine

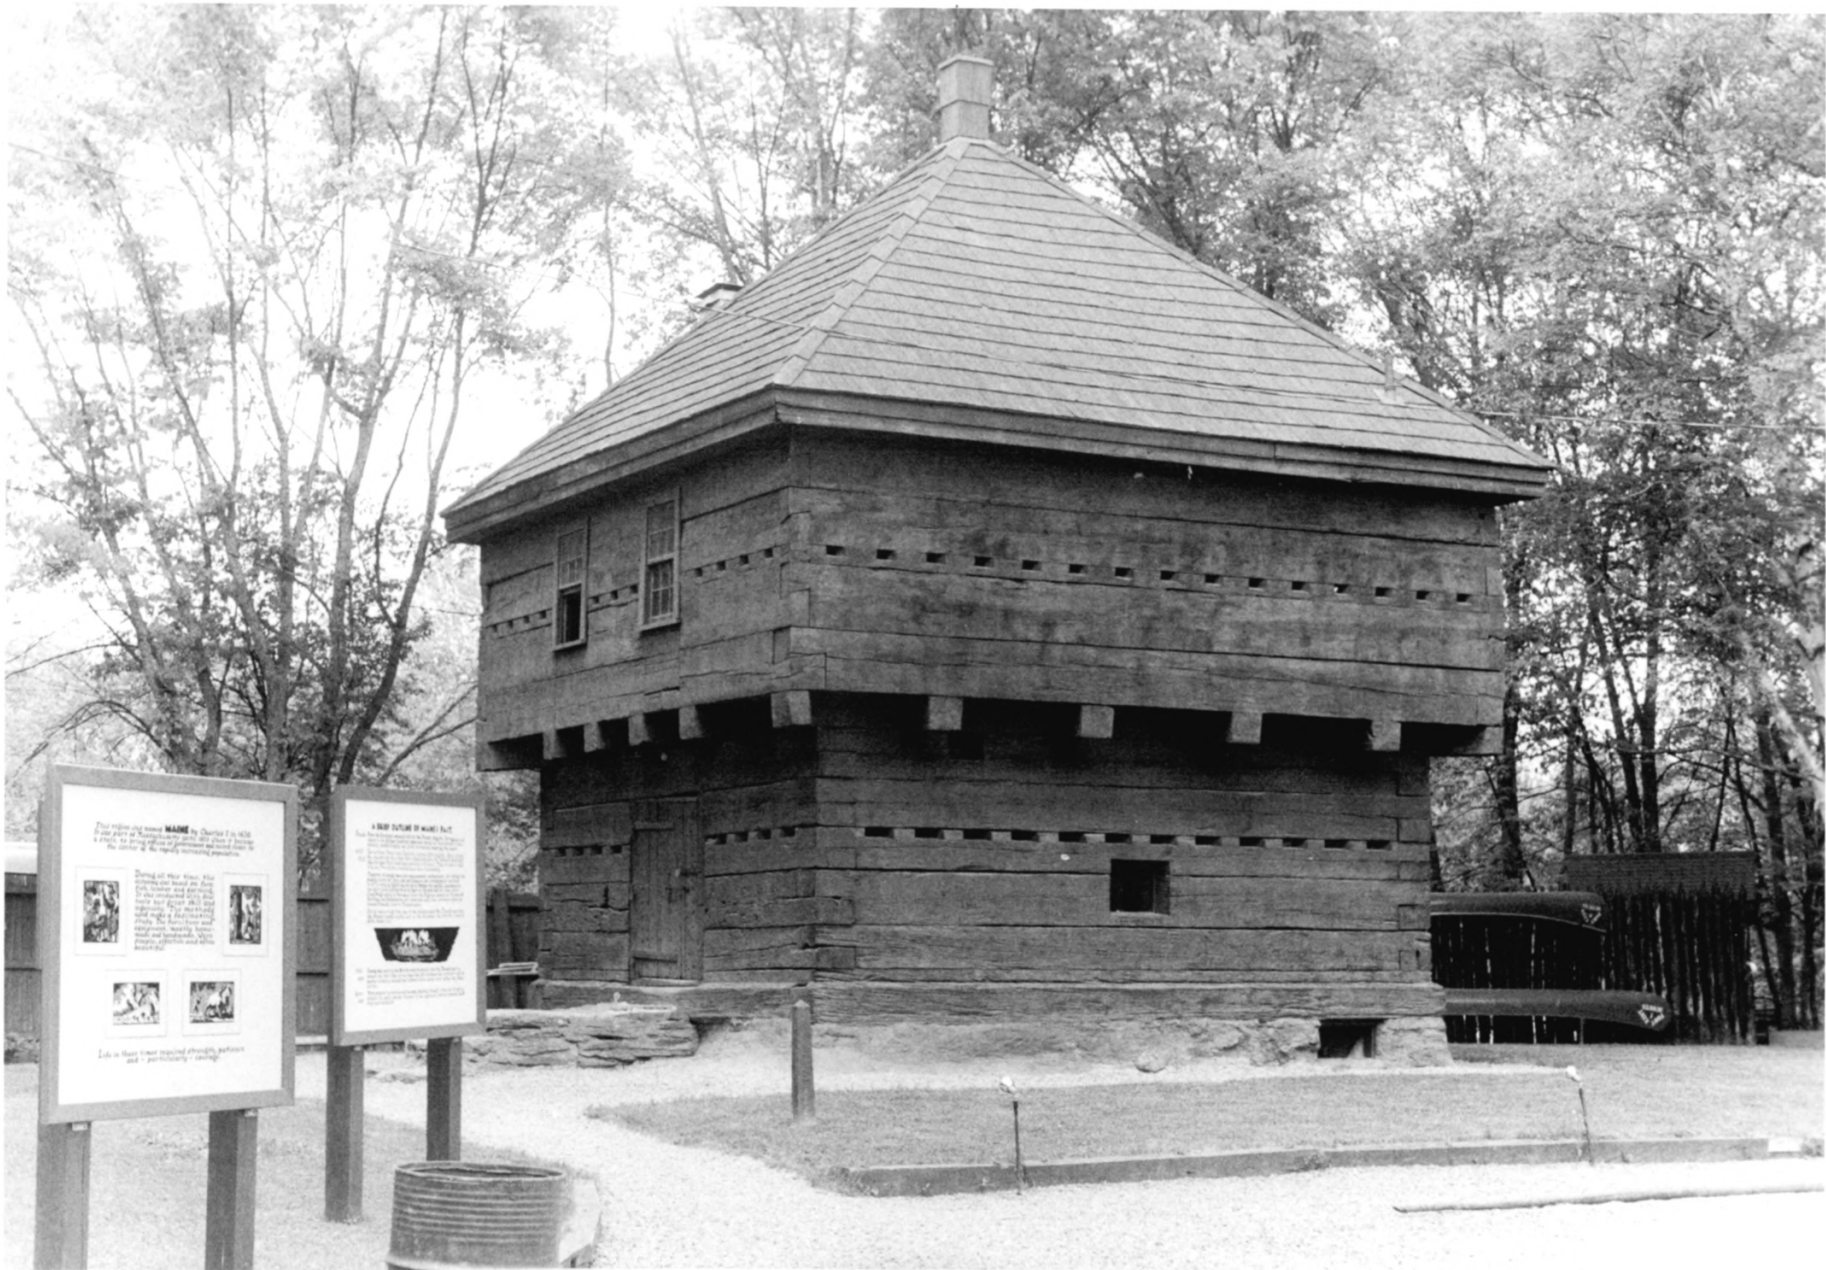

Fork Kent

Samuel Kelly
Samuel Kelly
Samuel Kelly

Fort Kent, Maine.

Courtesy Dept. of Parks & Recreation
State of Maine.

The village named MAINE by Charles D. Smith in 1811 is one of the oldest in the state. It was the first of a series of settlements and was the first to be named after a neighboring province.

During the War of 1812, the British burned the town on August 25th, 1814. The town and church were destroyed. The British then set fire to the town and the church. The British then set fire to the town and the church. The British then set fire to the town and the church.

Life in these times required strength, patience and a particularly - energy.

A DEEP FUTURE IN MAINE FACT

The log cabin was built in 1811 by Charles D. Smith. It was the first of a series of settlements and was the first to be named after a neighboring province.

The cabin was built in 1811 by Charles D. Smith. It was the first of a series of settlements and was the first to be named after a neighboring province.

Fort Kent, Fort Kent, Maine

NPS Photo 1973

Fort Kent, Fort Kent, Maine

HAS C file

A.P.S. Photo 1973

Fort Kent,

Fort Kent, Maine

HAS

C file

20fortk.ep

NPS Photo 1973