The Livestock and Equipment Barn at the Edwin Ransom Farmstead is a one-and-one-half story, log and wood frame animal/equipment/feed agricultural building. Its plan is unusual, as three square log cribs are laid out along the same axis as the ridge of the gable roof and separated by two access drives for wagons and machinery; these cribs are surrounded by several wood frame cribs, drives and sheds, all comprising a rectangular plan. It is supported by stone piers, the exterior walls are sheathed with vertical planks, and a tin gable roof covers the entire structure.

The eastern elevation is relieved only by the projecting hay hood above and the open entrance into the shed roof drive to the north. The southern elevation is accessed via a single-leaf door to the east and three large vehicular openings to the west, all open and without doors. The western elevation is blank and features the hipped roof shed that begins here and continues around to the northern elevation, which is blank also and consists of a full-length shed attached to the hipped roof shed that wraps around from the western elevation.

The interior consists of three tall, saddle and V-notched square log cribs placed in the center of the barn along the axis of the ridge roof and separated by two drives that access the cribs and the frame rooms around them. The surrounding rooms provide shelter for the animal stalls.

The Livestock and Equipment Barn at the Edwin Ransom Farmstead is currently vacant and in good condition.

Significance

Criterion C, local significance

The Livestock and Equipment Barn at the Edwin Ransom Farmstead is significant within this era of White County history (Boom and Bust: The War and Depression Years, 1914-1939; Section E,4) by virtue of its plan and construction. The use of the three tall, saddle- and V-notched square log cribs on axis within an otherwise wood frame barn is a floor plan unlike any other known agricultural building in White County. It is also one of the largest historic agricultural buildings in terms of square footage. It is in good condition.

Reviewer's Comments

The boundaries of this property are presently located along building lines. A resource listed in the National Register should include all features of the property which contribute to its significance. In almost all cases this includes its historic setting. Page 77 of National Register Bulletin 16, Guidelines for Completing National Register of Historic Places Forms, states that "the boundaries of buildings should include the land surrounding the building, unless the lot occupied by the building contains no surrounding land as in the central business district of most cities."

Please revise the boundaries to include the property historically associated with the resource. If a portion of the original setting has lost its integrity, please explain.
