DESCRIBE THE PI	RESENT AND O	RIGINAL (II kno	WN) PHYSICA	L APPEAR	RANCE

The building usually referred to as "The Old Cranbury School" was built in 1896. It was built of red brick, with a scale and ornamentation typical of the period. The corbelling above the windows and around the small circular windows is in the best style of the time.

Originally the building had four school rooms, two ion the ground floor and two on the second floor, plus a full besenent with about a third of its walls above ground, permitting mindows to light the basement.

The windows of the school rooms are arched above. The sash and glass conform to the arch in the style of the time. NATIONER

Separate entrances were provided for the boys and the girls; for boys at the south end of the front, for girls at the north extremity of the front.

Above the slate roof rose a cupola topped by a weathervane in the form of a feathered quill. This weathervane was blown off in a severe storm some years ago, but it is still in Cranbury and can easily be put back in its rightful place.

On the side of the cupola toward Main Street was the face of a clock. The works, inside the building, were operated by iron weights. The works are still there in good condition. The face of the clock was blown off by the same storm that tore away the weathervane. The appearance and action of the clock can easily be restored.

The original bell, at first tolled by a rope and pulley, is in place in the cupola. On the side of the bell, cast in raised letters, appear the names of the Board of Education for 1897. The bell was presented to the school by the graduating class of that year.

In 1909 a south wing was added to the building, and in 1922 the north wing was added.

By that time it was deemed proper for boys and girls to use the same entrance. The original separate entrances were converted into windows, and what was the ground floor center window was made an ample entrance, using recessed double doors with an admirable fan light above. A small portico shelters the entrance. The style of the cornice in the added wings follows accurately that of the original building.

Since 1934 further additions have been made to the school facilities. These lie west and south of the old building and are not included in this application for state and national registry.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Architecture

This building is the only example of late nineteenth control century architecture in a public building in this area. The proportions of the building are excellent and the details of moderate ornamentation are typical of the time.

Education

This building replaced two wooden two-room schools at either end of the village. It was an early example of the trend toward "centralized" schools. Education was carried on through the tenth grade.
