The Verendrye Plate is a flat square of lead 3/16" thick, 8 1/2 " long and 6 1/2" wide. On the face of the plate is inscribed:

ANNO XXVI REGNI LVDOVICI XV PROREGE
ILLUSTRISSIMO DOMINO DOMINO MARCHIONE
DE BRAUHARNOIS M C CC XXXXI
PETRUS GAULTIER DE LAVERENDRIE POSUIT

which translated means: "In the 25th year of the reign of Louis XV, Illustrious King and Prelate, Pierre Gaultier De La Verendrye placed this." The back of the plate (translated) reads: "Placed by the Chevalier Verendrye his brother Louis and LaLondette and A. Miotte 30 March 1743."

The Verendrye Monument stands on the site where a lead plate was discovered bearing the names of King Louis XV of France and Pierre LaVerendrye, an early trader and explorer whose sons buried the plate in 1743.

The granite marker stands about four feet high and is inscribed with the following:

HERE ON MARCH 30, 1743, THE VERENDRYES BURIED A LEAD TABLET TO CLAIM THIS REGION FOR FRANCE. THIS TABLET FOUND ON FEBRUARY 16, 1913, IS THE FIRST WRITTEN RECORD OF THE VISIT OF WHITE MEN TO SOUTH DAKOTA.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Verendrye Plate is the first permanent record found of the first white men in Dakota Territory. These men led the way for further exploration and eventual development of the northwestern United States. It was placed by the Chevalier de la Verendrye on a hill near the present town of Pierre, South Dakota; the date was March 30, 1743. La Verendrye and his brother, Louis, headed a small party of Frenchmen seeking a route to the Pacific Ocean.

Although significant to the history of early exploration in the Upper and Great Plains, the Verendryes left little in the way of accurate accounts of their wanderings. Prior to the discovery of the lead plate, historians tried without success to identify landmarks and Indian tribes mentioned in the La Verendrye journals. Proof that they were in the Pierre area when the plate was buried clarified many of those references.

The La Verendryes never found the western ocean they searched for, but they did discover the Red River of the North, the Assiniboine and Mouse Rivers and much of the western Dakotas--including the Black Hills. Their narratives encouraged others to explore further west.

The plate with which the explorers laid claim to the upper Missouri for France was given to Pierre La Verendrye (the Chevalier's father) by King Louis XV. Pierre's sons placed it at the summit of a high bluff overlooking the Missouri River where it laid for 170 years. In 1913, it was discovered by some school children on an outing near Pierre. Early settlers testified that a mound of boulders once stood on the site, which corresponded with La Verendrye's statement that he piled rocks in a pyramid above the buried plate.

The present marker was erected in 1933; the plate itself is in the possession of the State Historical Society.
