s	TATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)
	The remains of the Shepherd Grist Mill, first built prior to 430 and 1	operated for two centuries, mark the industry of the State's earliest incorporated settlement, originally known as Mecklenburg*, the first settler arriving probably as early as 1719.
	The mill stands near the Pack Horse Ford crossing of the Potomac. The Indian trail to Pack Horse Ford became the Philadelphia Wagon Road into th Valley of Virginia, and on this road, named Highs Street, the grist mil was erected.
	Thomas Shepherd Sr. not only built a mill; he laid out building lots for homes on a part of his first grant of land. Many wheat farmers settled in the vicinity.
	Shepherd bequeathed the mill to his son, Thomas Jr., in 1776. After the Revolution the village name was changed to Shepherdstown, honoring the builder of the mill.
	Shepherd started a trend of mills, which became focal points for roads
ļ	leading out to seaboard markets for flour. A map published in 1810 lists 31 grist or merchant mills in Jefferson County serving a coastal area from Alexandria to Philadelphia. Thus it is no exaggeration to say that Thoma Shepherd with his grist mill inaugurated a "bread basket" for the growing nation.
	There seems to be little doubt of the continuous operation of a mill on 4	this spot. It is presumed that the stone building still standing is more than two centuries old. The large, 40-foot iron wheel was once located

It is highly probably that Thomas Shepherd was here as early as 1732. The mill itself must have been built some time prior to April 6, 1739, when the mill is mentioned in The Frederick County Court Journal, and after October 3, 1734, when Shepherd purchased a 222-acre tract from Lieutenant Governor William Gooch and the Virginia Council.
