ARCHITECTURAL SIGNIFICANCE (describe important architectural features and evaluate in terms of other buildings within community)

The Bazaleel Taft, Jr. House is an outstanding local example of Federalist period architecture. The house is a two-storey timber-frame building consisting of a rectangular plan main section with twin interior chimneys and a north ell. Both sections of the house rest on foundations of hammered granite and are enclosed by pitched roofs. The facade (east) is symmetrical, having at its center a fine Federalist style doorway consisting of a six-panel door (sunken panels) surmounted by a semi-circular transom and framed by fluted pilasters.

SEE CONTINUATION SHEET

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE (explain the role owners played in local or state history and how the building relates to the development of the community)

In addition to its high-quality Federalist architecture, the Bazaleel Taft Jr. House possesses historical associations with four generations of the Taft family. The house was built in 1807 by the Hon. Bazaleel Taft (see form #33-53) for his son Bazaleel, Jr. (1780-1846), who had graduated from Harvard College in 1804 or 1805 and who had been admitted to the bar around 1807. Having established himself as a lawyer in Uxbridge, the younger Taft succeeded in many of the political posts previously held by his father. Bazaleel, Jr. served as a state senator, member of the state Executive Council and representative to the General Court; in addition, he was active in the establishment of the public Lunatic Asylum at Worcester in the 1830's. Taft was also active in founding the Blackstone National Bank of which he was president from 1829 until 1846.

Upon the death of Bazaleel Taft, Jr., the house passed to his son Henry Gordon Taft (1832-1903), who operated a farm, owned a hardware business and served nearly continuously as a County Commissioner from 1876 until 1903. Following the death of H.G. Taft, the house became the property of George S. Taft (b. 1859), a lawyer who served as the private secretary of U.S. Senator George Hoar (1883-1887), and as a District Attorney (1883-early twentieth century).

The Bazaleel Taft, Jr. House possesses integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship and feeling, as well as historical associations with Bazaleel Taft, Jr., a local attorney and member of one of Uxbridge's most prominent families during the nineteenth century.

The Bazaleel Taft, Jr. House meets criteria A, B and C of the NRHP.

ARCHITECTURAL SIGNIFICANCE

These pilasters support a broken cornice decorated with triglyphs and a pediment with dentilled mouldings. Window frames project from the facade and a cornice decorated with channels extends the length of the facade. An asymmetrical garden facade (south) contains a second entry consisting of a six-panel door surmounted by a transom and framed by fluted pilasters supporting a pediment. Original sash remains in the gables (9/6) and on the north wing (12/12). Other decorative trim consists of a Doric porch and a cornice with channelling on the east elevation of the north wing. A view of the house in its present condition appears at the border of the 1855 Map of Uxbridge. Located on the same lot as this house is the Bazaleel Taft Law Office (Form #35-51).

ARCHITECTURAL SIGNIFICANCE (describe important architectural features and evaluate in terms of other buildings within community)

The Taft Law Office is a unique local example of Federalist commercial architecture. Unaltered from its original appearance, the building is a one-storey brick structure, built on a foundation of hammered granite and covered by a hip roof. The facade (south elevation) is symmetrical, consisting of a center entry with a six-pane door (raised panels) flanked by two windows (12/12). The street elevation (east) also contains two windows (12/12). Extending around the building is a moulded cornice.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE (explain the role owners played in local or state history and how the building relates to the development of the community)

In addition to being one of only two commercial buildings of the Federal Period extant in Uxbridge (the other is Rogerson's Block-form #47-B), the Taft Law Office possesses historical associations to Bazaleel Taft, Jr., one of Uxbridge's most prominent citizens of the early nineteenth century. Born in 1780, Taft graduated from Harvard College in 1804 or 1805, after which he studied law and was admitted to the bar prior to 1807. Around 1807, Taft returned to Uxbridge, moved into the house built for him by his father, the Hon. Bazaleel Taft (form #35-51) and set up a law practice which he carried on until his death in 1846. In addition to his law practice, Taft was active in local politics, succeeding his father to several public offices including state senator, representative to the General Court and membership on the state's Executive Council. The younger Taft also promoted the establishment of a public Lunatic Asylum at Worcester and served as president of Uxbridge's Blackstone National Bank from 1829 until 1846. After Taft's death, his law office passed into the ownership of his son, H.G. Taft, and subsequently, his grandson, George S. Taft (see Bazaleel Taft Jr. House-form #33-51).

The Taft Law Office possesses integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship and feeling, as well as historical associations with Bazaleel Taft, Jr., a local attorney and member of one of Uxbridge's most prominent families of the nineteenth century. The Law Office also remains as a unique local example of an early commercial building.

The Law Office meets criteria A, B and C of the NRHP.
