9. Historical significance (include explanation of themes checked above)

110-112 Inman Street is a double house which is an integral part of a series of Greek Revival houses built on Inman Street in 1845. Slight differences in handling create a sense of variety among these essentially similar buildings. Unlike the more pretentious houses of the period, none of these houses shows any departure from Greek Revival forms. The porch at Number 110-112 is carried around three sides of the building.

All of these houses are essentially intact, and represent an important expression of the Greek Revival in a form not found elsewhere in Cambridge.
