A black and white photograph of the Hastings Municipal Airport terminal building. The building is a long, low structure with a dark brick or masonry exterior on the left side and a lighter-colored, possibly concrete or stucco, section on the right. The roof is flat and has a snow-covered edge. The word "HASTINGS" is written in large, bold, black capital letters above the word "MUNICIPAL AIRPORT", which is also in bold, black capital letters. The building has several windows, some of which are covered with snow. A large, multi-paned glass door or window is visible on the right side. A tall antenna or weather vane is mounted on the roof. The foreground is a snow-covered parking lot or road, with a dark, possibly asphalt, surface visible in the lower left. A power line runs diagonally across the upper portion of the sky. The overall scene is a winter day at an airport terminal.
