The electrical system must be entirely replaced. There is no heating system, and the cooling system is totally unserviceable. The plumbing also must be completely replaced. Leaking pipes are apparently causing some damage to the adobe and the foundation.

There have been several later additions to the building of generally poor construction.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The first Pinal County courthouse was built in 1877-1878 on a lot purchased by the county for $1100. The town of Florence was laid out in 1866 by Levi Ruggles (182-1889) who built the second house in the new town that same year. Ruggles was Indian agent 1866-1869 and later held the positions of receiver and register of the US Land Office at Florence. He was also twice elected to the territorial legislature.

Ruggles, who had had some experience as an architect and builder before coming to Arizona, drew the plans for the courthouse at a cost to the county of $25. The building cost $2700 to construct and became an important center of activity. Both Joseph Kibbey and Richard Sloan, who later served as territorial governors, tried and heard cases here. Sloan was district attorney in Florence 1886-1889. Kibbey went on to become the nation's foremost authority on irrigation law.

In 1891 a larger courthouse was built and the old one was used for approximately 40 years as a county hospital. At this time the porches were added, and an extension of the judge's chamber. In the 1930s the building began a 30-year career as a welfare and public health center and during this period several other rooms were added. The Pinal County Historical Society took over the old courthouse in 1963 and used it for a museum until 1970 when it was sold to Mrs. Julian Woodruff of Coolidge. It is presently unused except for a small apartment within the building where a caretaker resides. The owner wants the building to be preserved.
