STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Just before the Battle of Brandywine, Washington and his troops moved into Delaware. It would be the only time that most of the Continental Army would encamp on Delaware soil. Not knowing what Howe's strategy would be, Washington chose to camp first at Wilmington. The diary of Adjutant-General Timothy Pickering reported that on August 26 at 4a.m. we marched from our encampment to Brandywine Bridge, near Wilmington, then turning N.N.W. we proceeded a few miles and encamped near the east bank of the creek.

They stayed here a few days while Washington evaluated the situation and then moved to their encampment near Marshalton.

On December 21, 1777, 1500 Delaware and Maryland troops returned to the campsite. These troops, under the command of General William Smallwood, were to prevent occupation of Wilmington by the British and to protect the flour mills on the Brandywine.

The encampment site is now a part of Brandywine Park, a naturalistic city park developed under the direction of Frederick Law Olmsted.
