NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION

The Danville National Cemetery is located within the Bellevue Cemetery, 277 North First Street, Danville, Kentucky, in Boyle County. The national cemetery site, located in the northwest corner and containing 0.3 acre, consists of eighteen cemetery lots laid off in the form of a rectangle. Near the center of the north side is a bronze plaque inscribed with "Danville National Cemetery" and the seal of the Veterans Administration (now the Department of Veterans Affairs). A square limestone post, with the letters "U. S." inscribed on the upper face, is situated at each corner of the national cemetery. A flagpole, 70 feet high, constructed in 1971, is located just south of the bronze plaque identifying the national cemetery. There are no buildings, walls, or fences within the national cemetery.

Graves were originally marked by properly numbered stakes, which were later replaced with upright marble headstones. The cemetery closed in 1952. As of October 31, 1997, there were 393 sites used for the interment of 393 casketed remains, and there was 1 reserved gravesite.

The numbers shown for contributing resources within the property reflect the following:

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Danville National Cemetery is significant under Criterion A and is an important component of the multiple property submission of Civil War Era National Cemeteries. It is significant under Criterion A because of its association with the Civil War. The cemetery is also significant beyond the Civil War era, as it includes the remains of veterans associated with many wars and every branch of service who had served their country throughout its history.

Although this national cemetery meets the registration requirements of the multiple property nomination, it does not possess all the same physical characteristics. There is not a fence or wall enclosing the national cemetery. The national cemetery is located within the Bellevue Cemetery, which is enclosed.

A variety of ways was considered to end the period of significance. Since the only contributing resources are the site itself and the corner posts constructed many years ago, and a reasonable date could not be defined to end the period, the date of 1947 (50 years ago) was used.

During the early months of 1863, Confederate detachments continued to infiltrate among the Union garrisons trying to protect the state of Kentucky. The city of Danville was captured on March 24, 1863, by General John Pegram and his cavalry brigade, despite stout resistance from Colonel Frank Wolford, commander of the First Kentucky Union Cavalry. Pegram had previously been Edmund Kirby Smith's chief of staff.

Danville was also the site of several hospitals which cared for the Civil War wounded.

On September 11, 1861, the War Department had directed, in General Orders No. 75, that commanding officers of military corps and departments were responsible for the burial of any officer or soldier who died within their jurisdiction. Partial expedients were sought by acquiring soldiers' plots in cemeteries near large general hospitals, where a far greater number of men were destined to die than fell on the battlefield.

The site of the Danville National Cemetery was appropriated by the government in 1862 and had been used for some years for the burial of Union soldiers. It was not established as a national cemetery until 1868. By deed dated June 12, 1868, from the Board of Trustees of the Town of Danville, the following lots within the Danville City Cemetery were conveyed to the United States, at a cost of $600.00: Lots 10 to 17, lots 30-33, lots 35 and 36, and lots 38-41. The plat was originally divided into six sections, five of which were used for the burial of soldiers and one for the interment of citizens.
