Landward House' is one of Old Louisville's oldest residences; its original architect is unknown. It is representative of the grand, 19th century residences constructed in Louisville just prior to and after the Southern Exposition. The data

The garden and grounds were designed and landscaped by Frederick Law Olmsted, circa 1910, when the porch was added to the south side of the building.

Originally erected as a residence for Dr. Stuart Robinson, a colorful personality and pastor for 23 years of Louisville's Second Presbyterian Church (1858-1881), this home remained in the Robinson family until 1909, when it was purchased by Dr. Joseph B. Marvin, a practicing physician who was on the faculty of the University of Louisville Medical School. The last person using the building as a residence was Dr. Marvin's daughter, Minnie Norton Marvin Wheeler (Mrs. Blakemore Wheeler) who died without issue in 1964.

In 1965, Landward House was purchased and is now protected by a landscape architecture firm. The building stands directly adjacent to the newly registered St. James-Belgravia Historic District, original site of the 1883 Southern Exposition.
