٠

United States Department of the Interior National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

received JUN 2.0 1983 date entered

See instructions in How to Complete National Register Forms Type all entries—complete applicable sections

1. Name

historic	Thomas R. Marshall	House
and/or common	Whitley County His	, torical Museum
2. Loca	ation
street & number	108 West Jefferson	St ree t	N/ A	not for publication
city, town	Columbia City	N/A_ vicinity of	-congressional district
state	Indiana code	018 county	Whitley	code 183
3. Clas	sification
Category district building(s) structure site object	Ownership public private both Public Acquisition in process being considered	Status X occupied unoccupied work in progress Accessible X yes: restricted yes: unrestricted no	Present Use agriculture commercial educational entertainment government industrial military	_X_ museum park _X_ private residence religious scientific transportation other:
4. Own	er of Proper	ty
name	Whitley County Com	nissioners	······································
street & number	Whitley County Coun	rthouse
city, town	Columbia City	N/Avicinity of	state	Indiana 46725
5. Loca	ation of Lega	I Description	on courthouse, regis	stry of deeds, etc. Office	of the County Rec	order street & number	Whitley	y County Courthous	е
city, town	Columbi	ia City	state	Indiana
6. Repi	resentation i	n Existing	Surveys title N/A	A	has this pro	perty been determined elig	gible? yes X no
date			federal state	county loca
depository for su	rvey records N/A city, town			state

7. Description

Condition excellent deteriorated _Xgood ruins fair unexposed	Check one unaitered _X_ altered	Check one _Xoriginal site moved dateN/A
---	---------------------------------------	---

Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

The Thomas R. Marshall House is a two story frame structure located on a tree-lined street in a residential neighborhood north of the business district of Columbia City. The home, which has an ell-shaped design, features a pargetted brick foundation and an irregular roofline. The roof, itself, is covered with slate and is punctuated near the center by a single multi-flued, corbelled brick chimney. Constructed in 1874, the house has been remodeled a number of times, most notably in 1895, when Marshall brought his new bride to the home. Recently, it was returned to nearly its 1895 appearance by the County Historical Society, based on Marshall's original blueprints. The Historical Society currently operates the house as a museum.

The symmetrical main (south) facade of the house is three bays wide. On the ground floor, the center bay contains the main entrance, consisting of paired entry doors surmounted by a leaded glass transom. All other bays on both levels of this facade contain tall, rectangular, double-hung windows with entablature hoods and louvered wooden exterior shutters. The ground floor of this facade is protected by a large porch with a wooden balustrade. The porch's flat roof, which features a wide plain frieze and a box cornice, is supported by Doric columns positioned atop paneled wooden piers.

The east facade features a two-story polygonal bay and a secondary entrance protected by a smaller porch. The projecting bay, located near the building's southeast corner, features large, two-over-two, double-hung windows with shutters similar to those on the main facade. Recessed wooden panels fill the area below the window on both the first and the second story of this bay. A frieze and cornice is used to separate the ground floor of this bay from the second floor level. The entry porch, located near the center of this facade, is similar to the large porch on the main facade in its use of Doric columns atop wooden piers supporting the flat porch roof. North of the porch area, each floor of this facade contains a pair of rectangular windows identical to those on the main facade.

The interior of the house still retains many of its original architectural features. The main hallway features parquet floors, and pocket doors leading to the parlor and dining room. This hall and the library retain their original fireplaces and mantelpieces, and the balustraded main stairway also remains intact.

8. Significance

Period prehistoric 1400–1499 1500–1599 1600–1699	Areas of Significance—C archeology-prehistoric archeology-historic agriculture architecture		Iandscape architecture Iaw Itterature Itterature Itterature	e religion science sculpture social/
1700–1799 X 1800–1899 1900−	art commerce communications	engineering exploration/settlement industry invention	politics/government	humanitarian theater transportation other (specify)

Specific dates 1874, 1895

Builder/Architect Unknown

Statement of Significance (incons paragraph)

The Thomas R. Marshall House is significant as the home of a well-known Indiana politician who rose to national prominence in the early 20th century. Thomas R. Marshall, who served four years as Governor of Indiana, is best remembered as Vice-President under Woodrow Wilson from 1912 to 1920. This home, his home for over 30 years, is now maintained as a museum by the Whitley County Historical Society.

Thomas Marshall was born in North Manchester, Indiana, in 1854, and came to Columbia City after completing college in 1873. He studied law with a local legal firm and by 1875 was admitted to the bar, establishing his own law practice two years later. Long an energetic campaign worker for the Democratic party, he was a candidate for District Attorney in 1880 but lost by a small margin. In 1908, when the Democratic State Convention became deadlocked in its efforts to choose a gubernatorial candidate, Marshall won the nomination as a compromise candidate. He easily won election to the Governorship that fall, and during the course of his term, championed Progressive causes, although most were defeated by a Republican legislature. In 1912 he campaigned for the Presidential nomination; although he lost to Woodrow Wilson, he was selected as Wilson's running mate. Known for his outspokenness, Marshall is considered by some historians to be perhaps the most popular Vice-President that the country ever had, and is credited with helping to expand the power and prestige of that office. His hopes to succeed Wilson, however, were frustrated when the Democratic party, instead, sought out and nominated a candidate not connected with the Wilson administration. Marshall returned to Indiana after leaving office, and passed away in 1925.

9. Major Bibliographical References

Please see continuation sheet

.

10. Geographical Data

Acreage of nom Quadrangle nam	me Columbia	ty lesstha City	n 1 acre		Qu	adrangie scaie	1:24,000
UMT Reference	8
A 1 6 2 Zone East	216 71810 ing	4 15 5 17 3 1 Northing	3 0	B Zone	Easting	Northing
c			11	DII
				F 1
				H _
Verbal bounda	ary descripti	on and justific	ation
Lot 8, Block	6 of the	first addit	ion to the	town, now	city, of	Columbia Cit	у.
List ail states	and countie	s for propertie	es overlappi	ng state or c	ounty bound	daries
state N/A	L	cod	e c	ounty		coc	le state		cod	le c	ounty		coc	le
11. Fo	rm Pre	pared	By
		Adams, Man					·
name/title		istian, Ass Association		tor	  organization	-	Local Hist			late	December, 1	975 street & number	1400 Eigh	th Avenue,	South	t	elephone	615/242-558	3
city or town	Nashville			5	state	Tennessee	37203
12. Sta	ate His	storic P	reserv	ation	Office	er Certif	ication
The evaluated s	ignificance of	this property wi	thin the state	is:
_	national	X state		ocal
As the designated State Historic Preservation Officer for the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 (Public Law 89– 665), I hereby nominate this property for inclusion in the National Register and certify that it has been evaluated according to the criteria and procedures set forth by the National Park Service.
State Historic Preservation Officer signature
title India	na State H	istoric Pre	servation	Officer		date June 6,	1983
For NPS use Thereby cr	and the second	property is inclu	ided in the Na	tional Registe
1 and	lore	Burn		the stice		date 7/2/	/83
Keeper of the	e National Re	gister
() Attest:						date

Chief of Registration

United States Department of the Interior National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

For NPS use only received date entered Page 1

Continuation sheet Thomas Marshall House Item number 9

Dorman, Michael, The Second Man: The Changing Role of the Vice Presidency. New York: Dell Publishing Co., Inc., 1968.

Hicks, John D., "Thomas Riley Marshall," Dictionary of American Biography, Vol. VI, Part 2. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1933, 330-31.

- Link, Arthur S., Wilson: The Road to the White House. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1947.
- Mowry, George E., The Era of Theodore Roosevelt and the Birth of Modern America. New York: Harper & Rowe, 1958.
- Phillips, Clifton J., Indiana in Transition: The Emergence of an Industrial Commonwealth, 1880-1920. Indianapolis: Indiana Historical Bureau and Indiana Historical Society, 1968.
- Thomas, Charles M., Thomas Riley Marshall: Hoosier Statesman. Oxford, Ohio: The Mississippi Valley Press, 1939.
- Young, Donald, American Roulette: The History and Dilemma of the Vice Presidency. New York: Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1965.