DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Hope House is located on the northeast side of Voit Road, one-eighth of a mile northwest of the bridge at Tunis Mills, near Easton in Talbot County, Maryland. It is a seven-part brick mansion in which the central block is the original, Federal portion. The hyphens, wings and additions were built during the first decade of the 20th century to replace earlier hyphens and wings.

The north facade of the main block of the house is three bays long and almost as deep. It is 2-1/2 stories tall and has a central pavilion with a classical Doric porch (20th century). The entrance has a wide, single door which appears to be double, flanked by fluted pilasters and sidelights, with a wide, elliptical fanlight over all. Both sidelights and fanlights have designs typical of great Federal buildings. Above the entrance is a three-part window, the large central window of which has a semi-elliptical arch. In the apex of the pavilion is an elliptical window. All of the above-mentioned openings have rubbed and gauged brick arches in contrast to the Flemish bond brickwork with narrow convex mortar joints. The windows, which have 9/6 sash on both stories have stone sills and louvered shutters. At the base of the eave all around the roof is a molded brick corbel table which was installed when the house was enlarged in the first decade of the 20th century to secure more headroom on the third story. Like most houses of the period, the walls lack water table and belt course. On the gable roof are two handsome dormers with pilasters and semi-circular upper sash, fairly close copies of the original dormers which appear in early photographs.

The south facade of the house has two windows on the pavilion on both stories in place of the entrance, with an additional window flanking the pavilion as in front. The two central windows open onto the porch with jib doors beneath the sash. These doors appear to be original. Across the first story is a flat-roofed porch supported on fluted columns with composite capitals. In the apex of the gable of the pavilion is a handsome lunette. There are two dormers, as on the north side, and the tall chimneys rise from the roof at each end.

The 20th century hyphens are three bays long and were designed to connect to the wings at both levels, even though the ogee roof slopes from two stories to one. The windows have more brick detailing in the heads and surrounds than those of the original house. Each wing is 2-1/2 stories tall with gables to the facades. They are both two bays long and about three bays deep. Their chimneys rise from the farthest side of the wings, where they join the outer sides. The latter are 1-1/2 stories tall and three bays long with a jerkinhead roof on the outer gables.

The floor plan of the main block consists of a stair hall across the north facade and two parlors on the south facade. The woodwork in this portion is original to its 19th century construction. In the hyphens is a single room each, as well as the wings, which contain a dining room and den. The outer wings house the kitchen and office.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

SIGNIFICANCE

Hope is one of the great mansions of Talbot. Not only was it the home of illustrious members of the Tilghman and Lloyd families, it is one of the genuinely unique dwellings of its day and one of the best executed dwellings of the early 20th century. When built, Hope resembled in composition Mt. Clare, Baltimore, the home of Charles Carroll and his wife, aunt of the builder of Hope. Hope is considerably later, built about fifty years after Mt. Clare. Its original configuration consisted of the present central section with roof not quite as tall, with two 1-1/2-story frame wings connected by ogee-roofed hyphens, a truly dramatic composition. An old photo and the outline of one of the original hyphens were the basis for the design of the present hyphens.

A 1907 photograph shows a single hyphen on one side of the main block and a two-story brick wing on the other. Both appear to date to the 1870's. A mid-19th century daguerreotype shows small brick hyphens with ogee roofs and 1-1/2-story frame wings

When the building was remodeled in 1907 by Mr. and Mrs. Starr, the best craftsmen of the area were employed to execute the restoration of the brickwork and interior as well as to erect and finish the wings and hyphens. In their work, most of the original fabric was retained in the main section. A new porch was added to both fronts and extensive landscaping, walls, allées, formal gardens, and the dramatic drive were laid out chiefly by Mrs. Starr. All of this has been brought back to its glory with a few modern touches by the present owner and her late husband.

HISTORY

A 100-acre tract called "Hope" was granted in 1665 to Henry Hawkins, either a brother-in-law or stepson of the first Edward Lloyd (Patent 8/187). It was purchased in 1720 for £ 55 by James Lloyd, younger brother of Edward Lloyd of Wye House and grandson of the first Edward to come to Maryland (12/423). Hawkins had acquired land in Queen Anne's County, and in 1671 gave bond for the "Hope" to Thomas Collins, his builder, as part payment for his new home (1/188). After the latter's death, his cousin, Richard Collins, sold the tract to Lloyd.

James Lloyd was the second son of Philemon Lloyd and Henrietta Maria Neale (Bennett Lloyd. As the daughter of James Neale and widow of Richard Bennett and coupled with the rising Lloyd fortunes, Mrs. Lloyd was probably the wealthiest woman of her time in Maryland. Consequently her son, James, was in a position to put together a considerable estate. He bought tracts, all adjoining, which included:

DESCRIPTION (continued)

In the main block the stair ascends in the east end of the entrance hall. The bottom of the handrail begins in a volute and has a mahogany handrail and two balusters per step. There are fretwork step spandrels. Along the stair wall is recessed, paneled dado which is a continuation of the dado around the entire room. There is a plaster cornice in the hall. The two doors opposite the entrance open into the parlors; both have flat-headed decoration with reeding above the fascia. With the exception of the mantels, both parlors are identical. They have recessed paneled dado, doors and jambs, a jib door to the porch and overdoors like the ones in the hall. Plaster cornices are also found here. The mantels differ in the detail of the pilasters/columns; both have marble surrounds and hearths.

Both hyphens are very light and airy. They have tile floors and three arched doors on each side.

In the east wing is a large dining room with parquet floor, plaster walls and plaster cornice with dentils and foliated modillions. The trim has crossettes and the marbleized mantel is a copy of the original in the west parlor.

The west wing has a herringbone-pattern oak floor and Gothic oak paneling with Tudor moldings at the tops of the windows. The ceiling has a fine Baroque plaster decorative pattern. Bookcases were made to match the paneling. The mantel in the den is a very complicated ensemble with arches and fret in the same design as the paneling.

At the extreme west end of the long dwelling is a simple office. Finished like an early kitchen, it has plaster walls and chamfered beams. On the south side of the room, there is a very plain stair to the quarter above.

There are several outbuildings on the property, but only the brick icehouse dates from before the 20th century.

The 250 acres associated with this house are presently farmed, as they were when the house was built. The 76 acres nominated protect the agricultural setting of Hope House and include the family cemetery, landscaped gardens, and part of the working farm. This area is a peninsula between two branches of Woodland Creek, with landward boundaries marked by the drive.

"Hope," "Pickbourne," "Tally Farm," "Elliot's Discovery," "The Adjunction," "Widow's Chance," "Scotland," and "Lloyd's Discovery" (Rent Rolls 47/90). For "Pickbourne" he paid £ 1090, a very high price for 200 acres of land, making it probable that the price included a house. James probably lived there with his wife, Ann, daughter of Robert Grundy, a wealthy planter and merchant.

Robert, the eldest son of James and Ann Grundy Lloyd, inherited the farm on the death of his father in 1743. He married Anna Maria Tilghman, widow of William Hemsley, the great tobacco merchant, whose home was Cloverfield on the Wye River in Queen Anne's County (Scarborough). Robert's wife died before him, and in his will he describes himself as Robert Lloyd of Queen Anne's County (Will WRTC 3/170, probated 1783). He was survived by two daughters; the eldest, Deborah, inherited "Hope." She was already married to Peregrine Tilghman, a son of Richard of the Hermitage branch of the family in Queen Anne's County. It is likely that they were living at "Hope" previously, as Col. Tilghman is listed as a member of the Board of Assessment for the Commission of the Tax in 1782 (Tilghman). In 1785 the Tilghmans and Anna Maria Lloyd had an agreement recorded settling the division of Robert Lloyd's land (22/137).

Tradition says that the present house was built in 1740, but there is nothing in the tax assessments of either 1783 or 1798 to substantiate this. The property was resurveyed in 1804, and became known as "Hope" in its entirety (Patent IC#B/233). Upon the death of Peregrine Tilghman in 1807, the property was willed to his eldest son, Robert Lloyd Tilghman, noted as a wealthy and prominent citizen of the county (Will JP 6/186). Robert Lloyd Tilghman died in 1823, a comparatively young man, and his widow, Henrietta Maria, and his eldest son, Robert, remained on the plantation and managed it until 1863. This Robert was the last male heir to live at "Hope." In 1863 he moved to Easton and lived, a bachelor, to the advanced age of ninety.

"Hope" was sold to Thomas Crane in 1863 (70/275), and from that time the estate passed through many hands. Time did not deal kindly with the house, but it was rescued in 1907 by William J. Starr, a wealthy lumberman from the Midwest. He bought the house and 250 acres for $15,000. The building was practically open to the weather, and Mrs. Starr complained that her husband had bought little more than a staircase. However, they stabilized the main block, made extensive additions to the "curtains" and wings, and Mrs. Starr laid out a magnificent garden on the water side. Without the work of these
