Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

Hampton Hall is a wood-frame two-and-one-half-story residence on Mississippi Highway 61 in Woodville. It is situated atop a knoll and surrounded by an extensive informal garden notable for a variety of flowering shrubs and moss-hung live oak trees. The facade of the house is divided into five bays, the center three of which lie behind a monumental portico of Doric columns supporting a simple entablature and massive pediment. The entrance, executed in the Federal style, is composed of a single eight-panel door, side lights with decorative muntins, and a semicircular fanlight transom. The doorway treatment is repeated at the balcony level. Symmetrically spaced windows are double hung, with twelve-over-twelve glazing.

The interior of the house is based on the center-hall double-pile plan. The hall is divided by a partition wall having a doorway similar to that of the exterior doorways. From the front portion of the hall a graceful elliptical spiral staircase ascends to the second and attic floors. At the rear of the house a gallery has been enclosed and a kitchen wing added.

Located near the southwest corner of the house is a one-story brick carriage house. Northwest of the house is a small family cemetery.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

Hampton Hall, located on Mississippi Highway 61 in Woodville, is an imposing two-and-one-half-story plantation house surrounded by an informal garden. The house is important for its excellent state of preservation and its integrity of setting, and as an illustration of the combination of Federal and Greek Revival styles employed in early-nineteenth-century Mississippi. Although a builder and exact date of construction for Hampton Hall cannot be determined, some indication of age is provided by a gutter box, dated 1832, at the northwest corner of the house. A date of ca. 1825, however, could be ascribed to the house based upon the known construction dates of other area houses possessing similar Federal features.

Little is known of the early owners of Hampton Hall and no record has yet been found to explain the origin of the name of the structure. Prior to 1820 the land upon which the house sits was owned by John Brown, who in that year sold the property to Hugh Connell, whose grave is among those in a small cemetery northwest of the house. The subsequent owner, Susan Davis, purchased the property from Connell's estate in 1847. Her deed to the property mentions a "dwelling house and burying ground." In 1849 the property was purchased by Daniel Hoard, reputedly the chief engineer of the West Feliciana Railroad and earlier an engineer of the Erie Canal. At his death, in 1869, the property passed to his widow, Verona Regular, and at her death, in 1875, to her niece, Joanna McManus. In 1909 Joanna McManus conveyed the property to her three daughters, one of whom, Blanche McManus Mansfield, was to become a noted European illustrator and author of children's books. In 1902 Mrs. Mansfield was chosen to design and decorate the prayer book and alter cloths used at the coronation of King Edward VII. At Hampton Hall she is known to have decorated the walls of the parlor with murals. Unfortunately, no trace of her work there remains.

In 1947, after having been leased to a succession of tenants, Hampton Hall was sold by the estate of the last surviving McManus daughter to Maxwell Bramlette, who undertook a complete restoration of the house. In 1976 the house was conveyed to the present owners, Mr. and Mrs. David Clay Bramlette III.
