Lester Hotel / Lester Café
Cerro Gordo, Iowa

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

The Hotel Lester / Lester Café is a 70' x 66' 2-story structure located at 408-410 2nd Street NW immediately west of downtown Mason City, Iowa. The architecture and construction materials are typical of "commercial business blocks" in the early 1900's. The architect and construction contractor are unknown at this time although as indicated by the building identification block on the facade (see page 8), the property was developed by owner, Mier Wolf and construction was completed in the fall of 1915. Upon completion, Mier Wolf leased the space and the building housed a 29-room hotel, restaurant and grocery store. By 1925 a barbershop occupied the basement area in the center of the building which was accessed from street level.

Successful businessman and insightful property developer Mier Wolf strategically located this commercial block to attract business from the passengers and train crew from nearby railroad depots.

The hotel lobby is accessed by the front center exterior stairway. The lobby's original tin ceiling (in good condition) and skylight structure (blocked off) remain intact.

Lobby Ceiling

Skylight Courtyard (from Second Floor)

The building is constructed of solid brick on a clay tile with brick veneer concrete foundation. The hotel rooms are located on the second level and are situated around a central skylight located over the first floor lobby area. There is basement area under only the hotel (center) portion of the building that has exterior access from the street level at the front of the building and interior access from the restaurant (east side of the building) area. The business fronts on either side of the hotel lobby are accessed at street level. The original brick façade has been covered over with fiberboard paneling and painted; the original facade appears to be in tact. The west business front (former grocery area) has been altered, most likely at the time it was remodeled into an apartment; it most probably mirrored the east business front

The building is steam heated; the boiler and system appear to be original to date of construction and are in very poor condition. The original plaster finish on first and second level interior walls is in poor condition. It appears the original woodwork is intact and no alterations have been made to the hotel room and lobby configurations. The original grocery and restaurant areas have been altered to accommodate most recent uses.

Hotel Rooms on Second Floor

Hallway on Second Floor

The most recent use of the building was a residence (former grocery area), boarding house (former hotel area), and tavern (former café area). The boarding house occupants included "overflow" from the men's homeless shelter. The entire building has been vacant since November 2001. The overall structure is in poor condition and the City's Chief Building Official and Fire Marshall had noted several deficiencies prior to the building being vacated.

SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Hotel Lester / Lester Café is locally significant under National Register Criterion A as the only known surviving railroad hotel in Mason City. The building appears to have been designed and constructed primarily to provide temporary housing and other services for railroad employees and passengers, specifically for the Northwestern Railroad. This is substantiated by newspaper articles during construction which initially refer to it as the "new Northwestern hotel." In addition, the hotel was constructed on the trolley train route which ran along 2nd Street NW linking the railroad with the downtown. Prior to its construction, railroad employees and passengers would travel 6 to 8 blocks further to stay at one of three other hotels in the downtown at the time (Park Inn Hotel, Hotel Cerro Gordo and the Wilson Hotel).

Railroad as a means of transportation and shipping was introduced to Mason City in the spring of 1869 with the arrival of the Iowa Central (later the Minneapolis and St. Louis) Railroad from southern Iowa. Travelers could then board the Milwaukee train to Clear Lake for a round trip fare of $1.00. Tama resident Lew Ong, after missing a connection to Clear Lake, was forced to hire a livery rig to take him to Clear Lake. He noted that the highway was busy with horses and buggies and decided it would be an ideal place for an electric line. He decided to start the Mason City and Clear Lake Railroad. In July 1896 Mr. Ong was joined by W.E. Brice at a Mason City City Council meeting where they presented their plan. The Council approved their proposal and by June 1897 the electric line from Mason City to Clear Lake was completed.

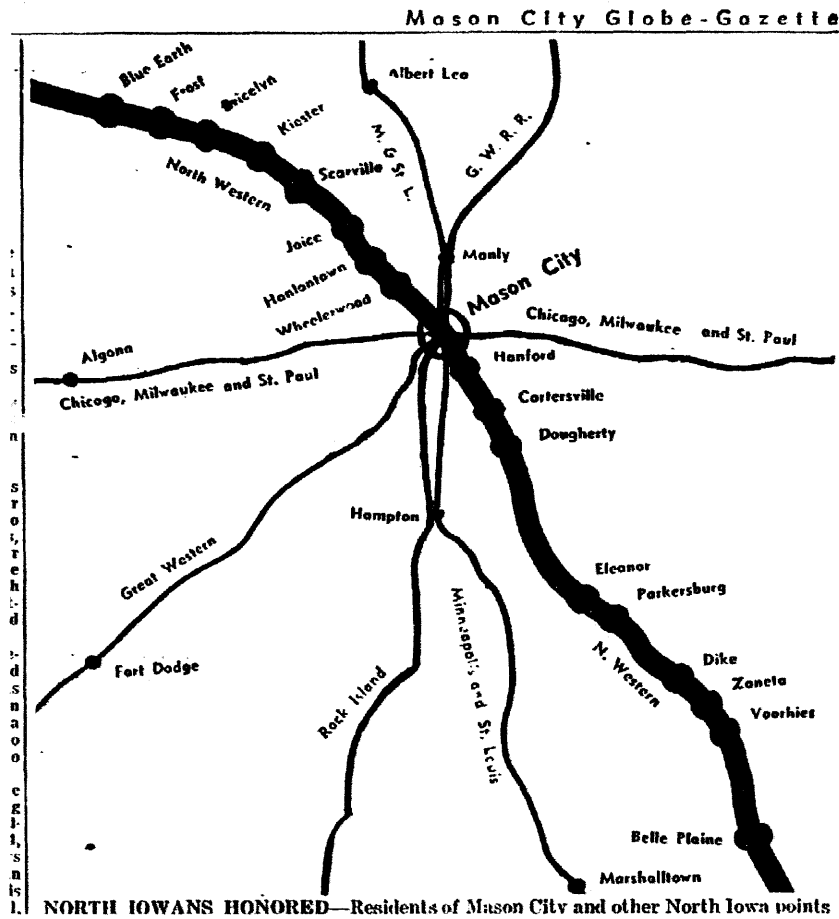

More extensive connections to the Mason City and Clear Lake Railroad were needed in order to complete financing of the original project. With financial assistance from Mason City native C.H. MacNider the Iowa, Minnesota and Northwestern Railway Company was begun. As a result, the Mason City and Clear Lake Railroad was connected with railway lines north through Lake Mills and on to Blue Earth, Minnesota an area from 35 to 40 square miles previously without a railroad. Under an agreement, Mr. Brice was to have the town sites and sell lots in order to extend the railroad southeasterly to Cedar Rapids connecting to the Northern (Rock Island) Railroad. The stations along this line were named after Brice and his associates: Bricelyn for Brice, Wheelerwood for J.S. Wheeler, Hanlontown for F.J. Hanlon (secretary of the company), Scarville for Ole Scar (merchant from Lake Mills who pointed out the area north of Lake Mills not served by rail service), Joice for P.M. Joice (Lake Mills banker), Voorhies for W.H. Voorhies (Iowa Central conductor), Hanford for Mrs. C.H. MacNider, Eleanor for Mrs. J.E. McDonald, Keister for Jacob Keister, Frost for Frost of Chicago, Zaneta for Zaneta Eager (daughter of a bookkeeper of the new railroad), Cartersville for the North Western chief engineer), Dougherty for the Dougherty family, and Dike for C.T. Dike (chief engineer).

NORTH IOWANS HONORED—Residents of Mason City and other North Iowa points
Railroad Transportation Routes 1869-1899
From Mason City Globe Gazette – Centennial Edition (June 1, 1953)

With the North Western under construction to provide additional outlets, Mr. Brice was able to sell bonds to pay his indebtedness on the Mason City and Clear Lake Railroad. In August 1900 the North Western line was completed. The building of this railroad line set the stage for a huge business and industrial expansion for Mason City in the following years. The railroad industry grew, bringing more and more passengers and railroad workers to Mason City. In December 1914, the new Great Western depot was completed on West 7th Street (now 2nd Street NW), just west of N. Jackson Ave. (now N. Monroe Ave.) joining the Chicago Northwestern in Railroad Park.

Recognizing the potential for a lucrative business block, successful businessman and real estate developer, Mier Wolf purchased the 66' x 82' property located just one block east of Railroad Park in March 1915. Construction began soon after and the building was completed in the Fall of 1915.

BACKGROUND - MIER WOLF

Mier Wolf was a prominent and successful Mason City businessman. He was born in Russia on June 16, 1871. He attended schools in Russia and married (Zesol) Cecil Gass. He settled first in Cedar Rapids, Iowa relocating to Mason City in 1898. His first home was at the southeast corner of Sherman at Drummond (now 509 S Washington Ave). From this location he started a hide and fur and metal business with a capital of about $500. Advertisements for this business read "Mier Wolf, Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Scrap Iron, Rags, Rubbers, Metal, Hides, Fur, Wool, Etc. – Also all kinds of Second Hand Machinery for Sale." Gradually he built up his business and invested in real estate until he was able to start Mier Wolf and Sons (a furniture store) in 1902 with his nephew, Joe Wolf at 305 S Federal Ave. The business rapidly grew and in 1904 he bought out Joe's share and moved the store to 408 S Federal Ave. Again in 1905, increased business forced him to seek a larger building and the store relocated to 226 S Federal Ave. In 1914 the business moved to 214-216 S Federal and one horse and wagon took care of deliveries. In 1923 Mier Wolf built a new 3-story store located at 309-313 S Federal Ave. Four new departments (radio, draperies, luggage and house furnishing) were added in 1926. By 1928 Mier Wolf and Sons was "one of the largest furniture stores in north Iowa" and built additional stores in Albert Lea and Austin, Minnesota. In 1928 the Mason City store employed 30 persons and had a fleet of five delivery trucks (deliveries made within a radius of 125 miles from Mason City). Associated in the furniture business with Mr. Wolf were his sons Louis Wolf (general manager), George Wolf (secretary and manager of credits), Abbott Wolf, and William B. Wolf. In a January 2, 1923 correspondence, Mier Wolf was listed among the city's wealthiest men being worth over $100,000. In 1926 Mier and Cecil Wolf moved to 811 N Adams Ave. This is a Prairie School designed home (listed on National Register of Historic Places 1/29/80). Mier Wolf served as a City Councilman from 1928-1932.

The 1929 Who's Who – Mason City, Iowa directory stated that Mier Wolf "did own and operate a Hide and Fur Business, Real Estate, and Metal Business. Now director, organizer and Charter member of Northwest Savings Bank; Director of MC Building and Loan Association; Member of City Council; President of Mier Wolf and Sons Furniture Store; President of Temple since its organization; lives at 811 N Adams; has 6 children- Mrs. Charles Coddon, Louis, George, Abbott, William and Robert; hobbies-bridge and pinochle."

The arrival of the Mier Wolf family in 1898 was the beginning of the Jewish settlement in Mason City. In 1902 the Frank Kropman, Sam Woldman, Morris Shulman and William Larger families followed. By 1908 there were enough families to support a rabbi; Rabbi Isaac Schultz came from Chicago and the Adas Israel congregation was formally organized. In 1910 a small synagogue was built at 621 S Adams Ave.; charter members were Mier Wolf, Frank Kropman, Sam Woldman, Morris Shulman, William Lerner, Morris Miller, T. Benblit, Sam Kitsis, Herman Goldstein, Louis Tokman, Sam Garfin, J. Friedman and William Alter. Rabbi Schultz was succeeded by Rabbi Simon Levinson in 1915. In 1920 Rabbi Schultz returned finding the Jewish community had increased by 35 families.

Incidentally, the Meir Wolf House was listed on the National Register of Historic Places on January 29, 1980 as a part of the 'Prairie School Architecture in Mason City' context. The home is located at 811 N. Adams Ave. and was built in 1909.

Mier Wolf died of heart disease on October 19, 1938 in Mason City. He was buried in the Eben Israel Cemetery in Cedar Rapids. It is believed that Cecil Wolf died in 1953 and was buried in Cedar Rapids. Records state that Mier and Cecil Wolf were reinterred at Elmwood Cemetery in Mason City October 25, 1954.

The Lester Hotel had one famous guest - track legend Jesse Owens. After Mr. Owens captured four gold medals for the United States in the 1936 Olympics, he organized and starred in basketball exhibitions throughout the country. In December 1937 one such event was held at the Mason City YMCA with spectators driving from miles around.

Despite Jesse Owen's celebrity-status, he was not allowed to stay in the "better" hotels because of his race. The following picture was taken by local photographer Safford Lock in Mr. Owens' room at the then Lester Hotel and appeared with Mason City Globe Gazette article detailing Mr. Owens' visit.

A 1916 newspaper article recapping new construction in the community stated, "Mier Wolf has added a good-looking hotel on West Seventh near the Northwestern depot, and various other store buildings have been constructed." The article related that the Hotel Lester was constructed at a cost of $40,000.

Upon completion this commercial block housed a 29-room hotel, grocery store and restaurant. Original occupant businesses were: 408 2nd Street NW – James W. Thompson Restaurant; 410 2nd Street NW – Lester Hotel (Lester Sundell, Proprietor); and 412 2nd Street NW – Jacob Kropman Grocery

The Hotel boasted steam heat, electric lights, and hot and cold running water. The rates were consistent with other respected hotels in Mason City at the time .50¢, .75¢ and $1.00 per night. It can be assumed that the hotel was named for its original proprietor, Lester Sundell. Mr. Sundell was the son of John Sundell, the original proprietor of the historic and architecturally significant Park Inn Hotel. Lester Sundell lived at the Hotel. Restaurateur James W. Thompson and his wife Minnie lived in the house at 404 2nd Street NW located immediately east of the café. Grocer Jacob Kropman and his wife Ida lived above the store.

Although never a "first rate" establishment, the Hotel Lester became even less appealing to train passengers and other visitors to the community by the late 1940's. According to notes in available hotel registers some guests left shortly after checking in, complaining of being "unsatisfied" with the accommodations. Also by that time the majority of hotel guests were the train crews working the North Western line between Blue Earth, Minnesota and Belle Plaine, Iowa.
