NATIONAL

This brownstone office building, only twenty-three feet wide, was built in 1859 for Dr. George W. Emerson, a dentist from New Hampshire. The Italian facade and interior are distinctive, having been designed by James B. Ayres and perhaps built by the artisans who built the P. L. Hay House who were brought over from Italy.

In later years the building was occupied by Dr. W. P. Holmes and still later by his son, Dr. W. B. Holmes, both dentists. In fact, this was used continuously for over eighty years as dental offices, with living quarters on the third floor.

This handsome building, now occupied by a ballet studio, is another contributing factor to the beauty and unique character of Macon's treelined Mulberry Street.
