Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

The Russian Orthodox Church of St. Peter and St. Paul is located in a rural setting near the incorporated community of Bramble in the southeastern corner of Koochiching County.

The church is a gable-roofed frame structure with a square entrance tower capped by a double onion dome. Simple double hung Gothic windows are situated on the apse and sides of the church. Orthodox crosses are placed on the rear of the roof ridge line and at the pinnacle of the dome. The entrance tower is pierced by wooden louvers on the upper sides and a simple double doorway. The gable roof features simple returns on the front facade, and a chimney rises from the northwest corner of the structure.

The interior of the church features rough board flooring and benches at the sides for elderly parishoners. The iconostas (1926) of the decorative partition separating the sanctuary from the nave are credited to Alex Tarabenez.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The Russian Orthodox Church of St. Peter and St. Paul is significant for its association with the early settlement of the southeast corner of Koochiching County. Much of this area of northern Minnesota is made up of forest lands and peat bogs, and sizable portions of the county have never been intensively settled. There were, however, several sections where settlers made attempts to clear the land and develop agricultural operations. The southeastern corner of Koochiching County included one of these areas; it was populated by immigrants of Russian, Finnish, Scandinavian, Italian, and Austrian-Hungarian descent. Many of these settlers were originally attracted to the iron mines in Ely (approximately 70 miles to the east) and later took advantage of land available for homesteading to the west. The combined populations of T64,R22, and T63,R22, Koochiching County, rose from no reported population statistics in 1900 to 295 in 1910 and to 493 in 1920. The Russian Orthodox Church of St. Peter and St. Paul was constructed in 1915-1918 by the Russian settlers in the area on land donated by William Lucachick. Most of the other public and institutional structures dating from the period of initial settlement have been razed or substantially altered; the integrity of the church and its modest but distinctive detailing suggesting its ethnic associations make it an important building in this section of Koochiching County.
