Summary

The P.J. Lindquist Building is a two-story brick commercial building located in the 100 block of S. Main Street in downtown Lindsborg, Kansas. Constructed in 1901 as a single commercial space on the ground floor with an apartment above, the building is rectangular in plan form with a flat/tapered roof obscured by a parapet. The building retains the traditional components of a historic commercial building with its storefront, upper facade, and cornice. It is a good example of a Commercial Style building with Italianate detailing characterized by the cast-iron storefront columns, tall display windows with transoms, ornate window hoods, and corbelled parapet. The interior retains components of the original storefront including the transom and original finishes in the commercial space including wood floors, fluted wood ceiling, and plaster walls with some historic stenciling extant (Malm Bros. Pattern No. 22C - Viola). Accessed by a street entrance at the north end of the storefront, the apartment on the upper floor is extant with few alterations to the original plan configuration. The apartment retains most historic finishes including plaster walls and ceilings and wood floors. Character-defining features, including the interior wood stairway, paneled wood doors and historic wood trim with its original stained and varnished finish, are in place clearly portraying the apartment's original design and character.

Elaboration

Setting

The P.J. Lindquist Building is located in the 100 block of South Main Street in downtown Lindsborg. The building at 118 S. Main, is located on the west side of the street and faces east. It is a traditional commercial setting with the front of the building aligned with the public sidewalk and flush with adjacent buildings on the street. One-story buildings abut 118 on the north and south. Although the street facades are flush, the Senior Center, a contemporary one-story building is located on the lot north of 118 S. Main and does not share a party wall. Approximately two feet separate the two buildings. Constructed in 1901, the existing building at 118 is the second building on this site. It replaced the Metropolitan Hotel, a former frame structure. The first available Sanborn Map following the building's construction (1905) matches the existing building footprint except the rear deck and patio which was one-story at the time of construction. The building occupies approximately one-third of the lot with the rear of the site, bordered by an alley on the west, used as private parking for the building occupants. A deck/fire escape is on the rear of the building, providing a second means of access to the upper-floor apartment. An eight-foot brick wall has been constructed on the north, south and west enclosing a bricked patio at the rear of the building. A few mature trees are in place on the west end of the site and in the rear patio.

Exterior

The two-story brick building has a stone foundation and a flat/tapered asphalt roof with parapet. A small square brick chimney rises above the parapet on the south side of the building near the east end. The brick facade features a band of sawtooth brick detailing at the parapet with a stone cap. The brick facade has remnants of a former paint coating but the original brick is clearly visible. Four windows are evenly spaced on the upper facade. The window openings are distinguished by ornate metal window hoods and have simple stone sills. The historic windows are 1/1 double-hung wood windows and non-historic storm windows have previously been installed.

Three cast-iron columns (manufactured by the John Seaton foundry in Atchison, Kansas) divide the storefront into four bays. The commercial space was originally designed to accommodate a single business, but was later divided into two commercial spaces. The center entry bay is recessed and features paneled wood side lights. The entry was formerly modified to accommodate separate entry into the two commercial spaces, but the original configuration was evident in voids and shadows at the ceiling of the recessed entrance. A paneled wood door with glass lights was recently installed at the original recessed central entry with transom above. The north display window appears original; the formerly modified south window was replaced to match the north. The storefront is a tall wood-framed glass display window with the transom above and wood bulkhead with vertical butt-siding and a cast-iron sill plate. A tall narrow four-panel wood door is located at the north end of the storefront, providing street access to an interior stair leading to the upper-floor apartment.

A rear two-story fire escape/wood deck with wood stairs provides access to the second-floor apartment at the rear facade. The west/rear facade is brick with three openings on the lower facade. Two 2/2 double-hung wood windows flank a central oversized door opening. All openings have two-tier header-course arched brick lintels and the windows have stone sills. The doors are a pair of narrow four-light paneled wood doors with a two-light transom above. The lower-level openings, doors and windows, all appear original where upper-level openings on the rear facade have been altered.

There are four original masonry openings on the upper rear facade. It appears that the original configuration was, from the north, a door, a pair of windows, a single window, and a single window on the south end. The former door opening on the north end of the upper facade was formerly converted to a small 1/1 double-hung window; the portion of the door opening below the window is infilled with brick. The paired windows are a set of 8/8 wood double-hung units with vertical wood siding above. The single window is a simple 1/1 double-hung unit. A contemporary slab door with aluminum storm door is in place at the opening on the south end of the upper facade and serves as the primary entrance to the apartment. It appears that this door was converted from an original window opening. There is a tall step up to the door and it has an arched brick lintel like the adjacent openings. The presence of the original door opening at the north end of the upper facade indicates original access, likely via a rear stair or fire escape, to the second-floor apartment.

The north and south side facades are generally simple brick walls with a stepped parapet. A small single window is located on the ground floor of the north side toward the east end and two single windows are located on the upper level of the south facade toward the west end. The upper windows are 1/1 double-hung wood units with arched brick lintels and stone sills. The ground-floor window is a 6/6 double-hung wood window.

Interior

The building was constructed to house the owner's tailor shop on the ground floor and was then occupied by a restaurant and later a bakery in its early years. The stairway to the upper floor (accessed from the street) is enclosed on the north wall of the commercial space. The balance of the ground floor is open to the storefront on the east. By mid-century, the ground floor was divided into two small commercial spaces. The only modifications appear to have been the construction of an east-west wall dividing the space and alteration of the recessed entry to accommodate separate doors into each commercial space. These modifications have been reversed, restoring the ground floor to one large open space with a small restroom/mechanical room located in the southwest corner. A historic photo provides an interior view of the space when it was occupied by the Tea Cup Inn (c.1919-1922). It appears a wall enclosed a small kitchen at the rear but was generally a large open dining room. The space retains its hardwood floor and fluted wood ceiling. Walls are plaster and historic stenciling, a common feature in historic Lindsborg spaces, has been discovered on the south wall. The pattern is by the Malm Brothers, published in one of their stencil catalogs (Design No. 22-C Viola). As noted above, the original wood windows and doors are in place at the rear of the ground floor.

There is a partial basement, accessed only from the exterior through a cellar-type door on the west end of the south facade. Basement walls are limestone and the floor is generally dirt with areas of brick pavers.

The upper-floor apartment is in fair to good condition with significant historic features and finishes intact. It was originally constructed as a single apartment and retains that configuration. The apartment is arranged in three general bays with the stairs from the front/street entrance located at the northeast corner of the center bay and the rear entry located at the southwest corner of the rear/west bay. The west/rear bay serves as the kitchen and has some minor contemporary construction. A long narrow bathroom is located on the south wall. The center bay is the primary living space, generally one open room with a closet in the northwest corner. The east bay is comprised of a large central room flanked by long narrow rooms on each side. The south room appears to be a small bedroom, the north room formerly used as a large closet or library with non-historic shelving. Circulation through the apartment is from one room to another with no corridors. A pair of original paneled wood doors separate the center and east rooms and a single paneled door is located between the kitchen on the west end and the center living room. Wood floors are in place throughout as is historic trim with its original stained finish in most locations. Historic trim includes tall baseboards and door and window casings, in addition to the four-panel wood doors. Door and window casings feature ornate rosette corners. Plaster walls and ceilings are in place in most rooms with few modifications. Historic light fixtures are in place in select rooms.

Summary

Constructed in 1901, the P.J. Lindquist Building retains a high degree of historic integrity. The street facade is in near-original condition clearly portraying its original design and character. The facade is distinguished by its Italianate detailing including the cast-iron storefront columns and ornate metal window hoods. The interior retains key character-defining finishes and features including plaster walls, wood floors, original paneled doors, and historic wood trim throughout. It is an excellent example of the permanent commercial buildings built by Swedish immigrants during the 1901 building boom in downtown Lindsborg.

Period of Significance (justification)

The period of significance for the Lindquist Building is 1901 to 1946. This period begins with the building's date of construction and ends with the sale of the property by Anna Lindquist, Peter's widow. Although the building continues to serve as a commercial building and has throughout its history, the period of significance corresponds to the ownership by Swedish immigrant Peter Lindquist who built the building in 1901 to house his tailor shop and after retiring, rented the commercial space while living in the second-floor apartment. The role of Swedish immigrants in Lindsborg's business community is an important part of the town's history and a primary factor in the building's Criterion A significance.

Narrative Statement of Significance

(Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

Summary

The P.J. Lindquist Building is nominated to the National Register for its local significance under Criteria A and C in the areas of Commerce and Architecture. The building is significant as a representative of early commercial businesses constructed by Swedish immigrants who founded the town of Lindsborg. Swedish immigrant Peter J. Lindquist commissioned the construction of this building in 1901 to house his tailor shop and an upper-floor living space, and his family owned the property for 39 years. Though the tailor shop was short-lived, other businesses – namely the Malm Bothers' Stenciling Business and the Tea Cup Inn restaurant - would subsequently occupy the commercial space. The building is significant as a representative of Lindsborg's 1901 building boom and for its long contribution to the small community's early 20th century commercial history.

The property, which has excellent integrity, is also significant as an early 20th century commercial building with Italianate detailing. Though the building has housed multiple tenants on both floors over the years, it retains a high degree of integrity – both on the interior and exterior. The street facade is in near-original condition clearly portraying its original design and character. The facade is distinguished by its Italianate detailing including the cast-iron storefront columns and ornate metal window hoods. The 2nd floor apartment generally retains its original configuration and key character-defining finishes and features. On the ground floor, one interior wall provides a vibrant stencil sample portraying one of the Malm stencil patterns. Oscar Gunnarson, who was a partner in the renown Malm Brothers Painting Company, coordinated the local stencil business for Malms, packing and shipping stencils from this building (c.1913-1917). Malm Brothers and Company brought recognition to Lindsborg in the early twentieth century when their decorating system (stenciling process) was purchased and marketed by the Acme Company of Detroit. By 1915 the new national stenciling business had expanded into two additional buildings, including 122 S. Main.

Elaboration

Lindsborg

Centrally located in the state, the town of Lindsborg is in northern McPherson County in the Smoky Hill River valley. Swedish immigrant settlers founded Lindsborg in 1869. An advance party arrived in 1868 and constructed a small building near what is now Coronado Heights. The First Swedish Agricultural Company (SAC) of Chicago purchased 13,160 acres of railroad land for the Swedish immigrant group from the Värmland Province of Sweden.¹

Swedes with the SAC arrived in the valley from Chicago eager to found a new town. The name Lindsborg was derived from the first syllable of the last names of several officers of the SAC including Lindgren, Lindale, Linde and Lindh. Ultimately deciding on the present town site in Section 17, Lindsborg was laid out in November 1869 using a tape measure and square. A post office was established in December of the same year. The SAC formed the Swedish Trading Company and built a company store. They sold shares to local Swedes, making goods readily available in the area.²

McPherson County was organized in March 1870, and named for James B. McPherson. In May 1870, Lindsborg won the county seat in an election; however, it was moved to McPherson only three years later. Lindsborg was re-platted and recorded in 1876 as the first city in McPherson County.³

Most of the early immigrants were farmers as the organization's name suggests, but it was these new Swedish Americans who established businesses along Main Street as well. Early settlers experienced the trials of most pioneer settlers, including the grasshopper plague of 1874. However, the town emerged stronger and experienced expansive growth in the 1880s. The McPherson branch of the Union Pacific Railroad from Salina arrived in Lindsborg in 1879, and Lindsborg was incorporated as a city of the third class in the same year. The first complete listing of Lindsborg businesses dates to 1878 and illustrates a comprehensive offering of goods and services. In 1881, Dr. Carl Swenson came to Lindsborg and founded Bethany College, an enduring institution inextricably tied to the community's development.

By 1883, Lindsborg had grown to a population of 600 and boasted three elevators and two mills, exemplifying the agrarian roots and importance of the local grain market. The town was served by three newspapers, including the Kansas Posten, the only Swedish paper published in the state. The first local bank was established and the town gained a reputation for its educational offerings. In addition to its public school housed in a new brick structure (1882), Bethany College had an enrollment of 80 students in its short two-year history.⁴ A brick yard was established south of town in 1879 by A. J. Swenson (later moved) accounting for the prominence of brick commercial structures.

A number of Lindsborg's existing downtown commercial buildings date to the town's early days from the 1870s into the 1890s. The one hundred block of North Main Street was the primary block of Lindsborg's downtown business district. Early commercial development also included the north end of the one hundred block of South Main Street with prominent commercial buildings including the Sundstrom Dry Goods Building at the southwest corner of Main and Lincoln (demolished) and three two-story Italianate buildings housing Swenson's Hardware, Erikson's Furniture and Undertaking, and Sternberg Harness Shop all located north of the future site of the Lindquist Building at 188 S. Main. The east side of the 100 block of South Main was home to a livery stable, blacksmith shop and agricultural implements business. The southern portion of the block developed with more permanent commercial buildings in the early twentieth century including drug stores, restaurants, offices, and auto-related businesses such as garages, auto repair and tire shops.

In 1901 Lindsborg led other towns in McPherson County in investment in new commercial and residential building.⁵ Investment that year totaled nearly $840,000, a significant building boom for the town of Lindsborg. In addition to construction of numerous new homes, commercial development included expansions at both local mills, new plate glass storefronts at Johnson's Department Store, Lander & Nelson's Hardware, and the post office and new business buildings by C.R. Carlson, Bethany Book Concern, Nels Batelson, A Beckstrom, and the nominated building at 118 S. Main by Lindquist and Swenson.⁶ The community continued to prosper through the agricultural boom years in the first two decades of the twentieth century. By 1909, Lindsborg's population had reached 2,000 and the value of local property more than doubled in a twenty-year period.⁷

Declining crop prices stifled growth in the 1920s, but the town persevered and exceeded the 3,000 mark in population in the 1930s. Growth stabilized in the following decades, and today Lindsborg maintains a population of approximately 3,300. The local business offerings have shifted from basic goods and services toward visitor-oriented commerce. Bethany College remains an anchor in the community and an attraction for visitors, especially their annual production of The Messiah at Easter. A 1914 article in the Topeka Daily Capital labeled Lindsborg a "cultural center and the community maintains that designation today with a concentration of local artists and an ongoing effort to preserve and promote the town's Swedish heritage and cultural ties.

Many buildings that served as the center of Lindsborg's growing commerce in the late-nineteenth and early-twentieth centuries including the P.J. Lindquist Building, remain today, reflecting the town's Swedish-American origins and early development. The Lindquist Building at 118 S. Main is an excellent representative of the town's 1901 building boom which like the early development, was driven by the investment of Swedish immigrants in permanent buildings to house their businesses.

Lindquist Building

The nominated building was constructed in 1901 at 122 S. Main⁸, part of the originally platted town. The initial land transfer of the lot in 1877 was from the First Swedish Agricultural Company to Eva Kristian Agrelius, who later married George Watson. In 1879, the Watson family sold the property to Sven and Martha Lindgren, who built and operated the Metropolitan Hotel on the site until 1893.

On April 12, 1901, the property was purchased by Peter J. Lindquist with the support of his father-in-law Gustaf Swenson. The Lindsborg newspaper reported that Lindquist, a tailor, had purchased the lot – the former site of the Lindgren [Metropolitan] Hotel - for $350. Only two weeks later it was reported that the two men were erecting a “modern 2-story brick building” on the old hotel site.⁹ The 1905 Sanborn Fire Insurance Map confirms the existence of the masonry building; See Figure 8 at the end of the nomination.¹⁰

Peter J. Lindquist was born August 8, 1872, to Per Jon and Marne Lindquist in Skona, Sweden.¹¹ He immigrated to the United States in 1892 and married Lindsborg native Anna Josephine Swenson in 1895.¹² Together they had one son, Clarence Lindquist, born in 1904, who lived in Lindsborg until his early 20s when he moved to Arizona.¹³

Peter J. Lindquist became a naturalized American citizen in 1908.¹⁴ Both he and his wife considered English their primary language, according to census records.¹⁵ The 1905 Sanborn map and 1910 census confirm Lindquist was a tailor and had his shop on the premises.¹⁶ The building's commercial space was listed as vacant on the 1912 Sanborn map, but the property remained in the family for 39 years, from 1901 until Anna sold it in 1946, six years after Peter's death. The family lived in the second-floor apartment for many years, apparently after closing the tailor shop on the ground floor.¹⁷ The 1930 census shows the Lindquist family residing at 122 S. Main Street and value of the property at $3,000.¹⁸ Mr. Lindquist listed his occupation as a clerk in a grocery store in 1930, suggesting he had retired and closed his tailor shop.¹⁹ A 1936 city directory also shows the building as the Lindquist family's residence and notes that Mr. Lindquist was retired.²⁰ When the 1940 census was taken in April, Anna Lindquist is listed as a resident of 122 ½ S. Main Street. Peter had died only one month before. Anna's brother, 69-year-old Carl Gustaf "Charley" Swenson was living with her.²¹ Anna was still living in the building in 1945, one year before she sold the property.²²

⁸ The address for the site has changed over the years, formerly 122 (with the 2nd floor apartment being 122-1/2) and currently 118 & 120 S. Main Street (since the 1960s).

Although originally built to house his tailor shop, the Lindquists rented the first-floor commercial space throughout much of their ownership. One of the building's most-significant tenants was the Malm Brothers' Stenciling Business. The discovery of the stenciling on an interior wall of the building (after seeing a photo of the interior of the Tea Cup Inn that shows stenciling on the south wall in the ground-floor commercial space)²³ led to discovery of historic documentation that the building was occupied by the Malm Brothers Stenciling Business during its heyday c.1913 – 1917.

The Lindsborg Business Directory notes that Oscar Gunnarson "cut and packed stencils" at 118 S. Main Street (no dates given).²⁴ The book G.N. Malm by Emory Lindquist details the work of G.N. Malm and his paint and stenciling business in Lindsborg and includes photographs of 122 S. Main in use by the Malm's Stenciling business.²⁵

Figure 2 – Photograph from Emory Lindquist's book on G.N. Malm incorrectly identifies the building as 122 N. Main; the building shown is 122 S. Main stacked with stencil "cabinets" at the storefront.

An early shipment of cabinets, containing panels with samples of the decorative system, is stacked in front of the Malm Brothers store at 122 North Main Street in Lindsborg, Kansas.

When the Malm Brothers' stenciling system was purchased by the by the Acme White Lead and Color Works Company in Detroit in 1912, Malm's Painting Business expanded to accommodate the growing stenciling trade and its nationwide marketing. The stated goal of Malm's stenciling system was to bring decorating to every man, making it available to the masses (not requiring a painting professional). In preparation for the marketing, the company made samples of various types and uses of the decorative system. These were produced in a variety of color schemes and placed in a cabinet each containing twenty designs.²⁶ By 1915, the Lindsborg newspaper reported that Malm Brothers had shipped $5,500 worth of materials and cabinets (the decorating "system") to be used in various parts of the nation. Twenty-five persons, including part-time employees were on the payroll cutting stencils and doing other things in the production process. Space in two new locations was used in addition to the Malm Brothers Store (located at 128 North Main).²⁷ Although the building at 122 S. Main was not specifically identified in the book, two photographs in the book confirm that the stenciling business occupied this building.

Oscar Gunnarson, or Gunny as he was known, was at the center of the new developments in the Malm Brothers Company. He became the resident manager of Malm Brothers, and as the decorative and stencil system developed, his role became increasingly important. Gunnarson was in charge of the organization and production of the extensive stencil operation.²⁸

Oscar William Gunnarson was born June 17, 1884, in Kansas to John and Maria Gunnarson who emigrated from Sweden in 1880. It is unclear precisely when Gunnarson began his association with the Malm Brothers Company,²⁹ Lindsborg's well-known paint and stenciling business. In the 1910 federal census, Gunnarson's occupation is listed as painter.³⁰ A notation in a 1901 local newspaper stated that Gunnarson and G.N. Malm had returned from working at the John Anderson residence in Salina. By at least 1912, Gunnarson was a partner in the firm.³¹ The 1920 and 1930 census records list his occupation as manager of a paint store.³²

³¹ Malm Brothers Advertisements in the local newspaper in 1912 and 1913 list Gunnarson as a partner in the company. Gunnarson's September 1918 WWI draft card describes him as a 34-year-old resident of Lindsborg living at 514 N. Chestnut Street. His employment is listed as "partner in Malm Brother's Co.," a paint and wallpaper merchant located at 128 N. Main Street, Lindsborg. The death of Nat Malm in 1928, followed by the onset of the Great Depression, saw the demise of the stenciling trade. The last catalogue was published by Gunnarson in 1936 featuring stencils by both Malm and Gunnarson. When the Malm Brothers store was sold in 1948, Gunnarson continued at a new location until his death in 1962. Despite its relatively short life-span, the Malm Brother's decorative system brought recognition and notoriety to Lindsborg, a community that is still known today for its artists.

By mid-1917, another business occupied the building at 122 S. Main. Lindsborg Tea and Coffee Co. is listed at this address in 1917 and 1918 telephone directories but little is known about the business.

By 1919, the Tea Cup Inn Restaurant, occupied the first floor of the building (c.1919-1922).³³ The Tea Cup Inn was owned and operated by Mary Linderholm, the daughter of Lindsborg pioneer John Train.³⁴ She was born March 11, 1874, married Emil Linderholm in April 1896, and had six daughters.³⁵ After Emil's death Mary moved to town in 1917 and later opened the Tea Cup Inn joining her brothers as local entrepreneurs. The Train brothers owned and operated several businesses in downtown Lindsborg including a large implement shop. Mary's six daughters worked as waitresses in the new restaurant. According to recent recollections of the second oldest child's (Verlie) daughter Kathryn Franz, the girls would kill and dress chickens behind the building every Saturday night in preparation for fried chicken dinner on Sunday.³⁶ The Inn always served fresh bread and was known for their pastries. A "candy man" sold chocolates on the premises. Professors from Bethany College and local businessmen, including the owner of Leaf Motors, came in each morning for fresh, hot baked goods.³⁷

The Inn had advertisements in the local phone directory touting value and quality, as well as little luxuries worth sharing with slogans such as, “get a square meal for a square deal,” “Why eat alone – Eat with your friend” and “we have a complete line of box and bulk chocolates.”³⁸ The Tea Cup Inn operated in the building from around 1919 until 1922.³⁹ By the early 1920s, Mary’s daughters were young adults and leaving to start their own lives. Mary was losing her best waitresses and decided to close the Tea Cup Inn. After a short time assisting her daughters as they started their own families, ever the entrepreneur, Mary established another successful business in Lindsborg.⁴⁰ The 1930 census lists Mrs. Linderholm, residing at 231 Main Street and her occupation as “manufacturer of food stuffs.”⁴¹ Mary converted the first floor of her home on North Main Street to a bakery and capitalized on her established reputation as a good cook and baker. She baked cookies and cakes and sold them to area grocery stores. One of her best-known items was “Aunt Mary’s Salad Dressing,” also sold to local grocers. Soon her youngest daughter Georgia returned to Lindsborg from Kansas City to help her mother in the business. They had an established route of clients in nearby communities including Salina, Gypsum, and Marquette who purchased the fresh baked goods and dressing each week.⁴²

Back at the Lindquist Building, the first floor was leased to Will Lundstrom and Ernst Holms in 1924.⁴³ Holms was a baker and likely operated a bakery in the space. In the 1930s, Paul A. Gustafson ran a hatchery in the building.⁴⁴ By the 1940s, the building was split into two commercial spaces with one-half of the ground floor occupied by a restaurant.⁴⁵ In 1947, Myrtle’s Café is listed in the Lindsborg business directory at 118 S. Main, operated by proprietor Todd Myrtle.⁴⁶ A restaurant remained in the building for the next two decades under two additional family proprietorships: Albin & Amy Anderson had a restaurant in the building followed by the new building owners, Francis & Harriet Lundquist.

Peter Lindquist's widow, Anna J. Lindquist, sold the property to Frances & Harriet Lundquist in 1946.⁴⁷ Frances L. Lundquist, born in 1910 in nearby Gypsum in Saline County, moved to Lindsborg in the late 1920s.⁴⁸ In the 1940s, Frances operated an electrical repair shop and served in World War II.⁴⁹ After they purchased the nominated building, Frances and Harriet lived in the 2nd floor apartment and operated Harriet's Café on the ground floor in the 1950s.⁵⁰ Frances died in 1968. Harriet Lundquist sold the building to Mark O.J. Esping and his wife in 1974. Around this time, the address of the building changed from 122 to 118 S. Main.

Under Esping's ownership, local business directories show building tenants included antique shops, galleries, an upholstery shop and offices until 2006 when it was listed as vacant. Esping sold the property to the current owner, Jim Prugh of Riverbank Cedar LLC in 2013.

⁴⁷ Deed records show Anna J. Lundquest transferring the property to Frances & Harriet Lundquest. Given the abundance of evidence it is likely the last names on this legal transaction were misspelled for both parties. Census, city directories, burial records & deed research data show that despite the similarities in their names, the families were not related and both families spelled their names with an "i" in "quist." The Lindquist family owned the property from 1901 until Anna Lindquist sold it to the Lundquists in 1946.
