18. Description This building at 2301 West Jefferson Street was built in) 1890 as a firehouse. It is a two story brick building with stone trim. The first floor has a central door for the fire truck and smaller door on the west side with a large transom. The east side of the facade, and cornering 23rd Street, is a tower which slightly protrudes from the facade. All openings are rectangular with heavy ashlar stone lintles and stone sills. Above the second (over) 19. History Hook and Ladder Company #4 was built in 1890 to provide the Russell neighborhood with adequate fire protection during its peak of growth.
20. Significance This utilitarian structure is architecturally significant due to its use of terra cotta detailing and its bold utilitarian style. The use of large ashlar stone in the lintels, and the striking tower are of particular significance.			Roll No. 41 Picture No. 39 Direction
