A black and white photograph of the entrance to South Beaver School. The building features a prominent stone masonry facade. A large, multi-paned window is positioned above the entrance, with various items like books and a globe visible inside. The entrance itself consists of a set of dark double doors with a small circular window in the upper left pane. The name "SOUTH BEAVER SCHOOL" is inscribed in capital letters above the door. Two tall, thin, bare trees stand on either side of the entrance, and large, dark bushes are planted in front of the building. A concrete walkway leads to the doors, and a grassy area is visible in the foreground.
