DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Blue Jay Inn was originally two separate hotels, 2-storey third pitch gabled roof. The front and main part of the present inn was approximately 100' long and 20' deep. It had a small porch over the front door. There were five front bays. The front wall is probably log construction—the present owners were unable to go through the wall with a 3' drill. It is all-over shingle finish, as are several homes in the same area. The second two-storey building was pushed against the main building as a wing, making it a T-shaped structure, with 80' length toward the back and a 20' width. A large veranda running across the front and the side of the building were added in 1900.

There is also an annex to the inn immediately left of it, probably built about 1900.

On the main floor there are a lobby, a parlor, a gift shop, serving room, dining room and kitchen. Upstairs there are 15 small guest rooms and one bath. Where the two buildings were joined, steps lead down to a lower level. There is a double fireplace sharing a single chimney between the parlor and the lobby.
