18. bays on the right side appear unusually deep. Ribbed metal roof topped by three small lightning rods.

The most significant outbuilding is the round, dry laid limestone smokehouse. It also has a ribbed metal roof and finial. The doorway has a crude wooden lintel. Immediately east of the smokehouse is a large bank barn with stone foundation. The small wooden sheds and garage were built by the present owner's father. A large greenhouse, which stood in the front yard where only the foundations remain, blew down on March 19, 1948. When re-surveyed in October, 1982, the smokehouse was in deteriorated condition.

19. laborer named Henry Randell also lived on the proeprty with Hilbert. Mr. Martz, a blacksmith by trade, acquired the property in 1922. His daughter continues in residence.

20. Round smokehouse is one of only three in the area and the only recorded group of round German smokehouses in Kentucky.
