Description: The Latham Confederate Monument in Riverside Cemetery in Hopkinsville is 37.5 feet tall. The base of the structure is eight feet three inches square, supporting a pedestal of two polished stones with intaglio border, the upper stone projecting. On the southern face in a raised panel is inscribed: "Confederate Dead." Above this is the die seven feet in height by four and a half foot square with four highly polished panels each with an inscription: west side-"This monument is erected at the place of his birth by a surviving comrade to commemorate the virtues of the Confederate Dead A.D. 1887;" north side- "Beneath the sod is mingled the sacred dust of 101 unknown soldiers, who were attached to the following commands: 1st Mississippi Regiment, 2nd Mississippi Regiment, 7th Texas Regiment, 8th Kentucky Regiment, Forrest's Cavalry, Woodward's Kentucky Cavalry, Green's Kentucky Artillery War Between the States 1861-1865;" east side- "While martyred for conscience's sake are respected, the valor and devotion of the Confederate soldiers will be admired by the good and the brave;" south side- "Round this column is buried all the heroism that could die."

The north and south sides of the die are decorated with bronze cannon and the east and west sides with laurel wreaths. Above the die is a plain square shaft 12 feet high. On the front of the shaft are two crossed swords with a laurel wreath. The structure is ornamented with a Corinthian cap-stone, bearing on its summit a pyramid of five polished granite cannon balls 18 inches in diameter. At the approach to the monument on the south side is an ornamented entrance of granite eight feet wide. On the posts of the entrance are engraved branches of laurel and oak and underneath an antique dagger encircled by a wreath of laurel. The lot on which the monument stands and the soldiers are buried is heart shaped and border with granite curbing.

Statement of Significance: The Latham Confederate Monument in Riverside Cemetery in Hopkinsville, Kentucky meets National Register criterion A and is significant within the context of "Civil War Monuments in Kentucky, 1861-1935." The monument was erected in 1887 by John C. Latham a former resident of Hopkinsville, who had moved to New York. Latham paid some $14,000 to create the monument and to remove 101 unknown Confederate soldiers from various graves and rebury them in the lot where the monument was placed. The lot chosen was one of the highest in the cemetery and was placed there so it could be seen from the railroad and from the heights of the city. The unveiling ceremonies had the feel of a funeral procession. This is fairly typical of monuments erected in the 19th Century, especially those in cemeteries. The ceremony included prayer and a benediction and was described by the newspaper as "... an eloquent tribute to the dead." It is a good example of the property type "shaft or obelisk." It is one of the more expensive and largest monuments erected in the state.

Verbal Boundary Description - The Latham Confederate Monument boundaries form a circle with a radius of 100 feet and include the heart shaped lot where 101 Confederate soldiers are buried, the monument and ornamental entrance and the granite curbing that surrounds the lot located in Riverside Cemetery in Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

Verbal Boundary Justification - The area associated with the monument is restricted to the ground on which the monument sits and a small buffer around it. The setting outside such a restricted area is not seen as critically important to maintaining an integrity of association. Because the focus of the multiple property submissions is the significance of the monuments, their proposed area of listing will reflect that they have been considered by-and-large, in isolation from their surrounds.
