The original fenestration consisted of double-hung sashes (nine over nine) fitted with louvered blinds. These were removed in 1930 during renovation and larger windows were installed. The present windows, nine on the second floor and eight on the first, have stone lintels and sills.

While the original floor plan is not fully known, the present arrangement probably follows the original closely. Downstairs, a hall bisects the building giving access to four classrooms. A stair leads to the second floor hall. On the second floor, six large rooms give onto a central hall, at the rear of which is a large studio.
