Describe present and historic physical appearance.

The Carl Trundle Barn is a double pen log cantilevered barn built ca. 1900. The barn was built in a rectangular plan with two log pens separated by a central runway. The second story is cantilevered approximately three feet over the first story on all four facades. The south facade of the building has vertical board siding and on the west facade is a ca. 1960 shed roof addition with an open drive-thru. The logs have half-dovetail notching and lack chinking between the logs. On the south facade is an original frame wing with vertical board siding. The interior bracing is of mortise and tenon construction. The sill logs rest on stone pier foundations. The south facade stall has 2 doors of vertical board. The building sits in an open field in a rural section of the county.

State significance of property, and justify criteria, criteria considerations, and areas and periods of significance noted above.

The Carl Trundle Barn is significant under criterion C as a representative example of a double pen cantilevered log barn. The barn is one of 126 double pen cantilevered log barns inventoried in the county and has not been significantly altered. The ca. 1920 addition on the west facade is typical of additions and enlargements which are found on the majority of cantilevered barns in the county. The barn has two log pens spearated by a central runway and a frame upper level with vertical board siding and weatherboard siding. The barn has side facing gables and a roof ridge parallel to the front and rear of the structure. The barn continues to be used for livestock and hay storage.

This barn was built ca. 1900 by John Keller who owned this farm in the late 19th century. The barn was constructed in a cantilevered double pen fashion which was common to Blount County and was intended to serve as a stock barn. The property was conveyed in the 1910s to Keller's daughter Minnie Keller, who married Carl Trundle and lived on the farm from 1916 to 1919. During this time the barn became associated with Trundle and has continued to he referred to as the Carl Trundle Barn. The property changed hands numerous times until 1932 when it was purchased by Luther Lequire. The Lequire family owned the farm until 1974 when it was purchased by the present owner. The barn continues to be used for agricultural purposes.
