which consists of a recessed single-leaf door flanked by sidelights, and two narrow one-over-one windows complete with stone sills and flattened-arch lintels with keystones. The two outer have a pair of larger one-over-one windows with similar arches and sills. Both the entrance and the paired windows are now shielded by red canvas awnings.

A portion of the first story that is composed of a single-leaf door and a one-over-one window is visible underneath the southern pair of windows. This floor is accessed from the exterior by a curved stone staircase descending from the south side of the stoop.

The southern elevation contains the exterior stone chimney and is fenestrated by seven one-over-one windows on each floor. A projecting stone beltcourse divides the two stories as well as the two types of stonework. The first-story windows contain the more elaborate flattened arch lintels with keystones, while the second story windows have random stonework above the metal support. A steel staircase provides access to a single-leaf entrance to the second story on the eastern end of the elevation.

The rear, or eastern, elevation is fenestrated by five one-over-one windows on each story. Largely obscured by the adjacent National Guard Building, the north elevation is arranged similar to its southern counterpart, but contains nine windows per floor and lacks both a chimney and an entrance.

In 1994, the interior was remodeled with new paint and carpet. The original stone walls remain exposed; however, only a few interior trim details are notable such as the stone fireplace and a heart-shaped stone in one wall.

There are no outbuildings associated with this property.

State significance of property, and justify criteria, criteria considerations, and areas and periods of significance noted above:

Summary

The Lynn Shelton American Legion Post No. 27 is being nominated under Criterion A with local significance as the only extant historic structure associated with the American Legion organization in Fayetteville. Under Criterion C, the building is locally significant for the quality and dual nature of the stonework.

Elaboration

The American Legion was founded in France during the relatively quiet and uneventful days that followed the signing of the armistice that ended the Great War. American enlisted men from all three of the principal branches of the service then in existence - the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps - were billeted in various locations for the purpose of maintaining a military presence while the negotiators worked out the details of the treaty that would outline the political future of much of Europe for the next decade. These servicemen found life during the occupation uneventful and boring, and this only compounded the frustration felt by many at not being allowed to return home to family and friends. A small group of officers, especially Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. and Lieutenant Colonel George A.

White, met to discuss the possibility of establishing a veterans' organization that would include all branches of the military and which would serve the immediate purpose of providing an outlet for some of the energy and frustration felt by the occupation forces but which would also set as its larger goal the establishment of a nationwide veterans' organization that would provide its members with both a social organization and a vehicle for voicing their collective concerns about such issues as national defense, subversive activity, radical thought, domestic social programs and veterans' affairs.

Successive meetings over the course of the next several months in both Europe and America further defined the Legion's mandate and purpose. However, it was the shooting of four Legionnaires during an Armistice Day parade in the lumber town of Centralia, Washington in 1919 by socialist IWW organizers and the subsequent coverage of the trial which followed - in which the Legionnaires were portrayed as the aggressors - that both galvanized and tempered the Legionnaire spirit. Both the public and the Legion press recognized the dangers of extremism by any party while admitting the need for responsible vigilance against any activity that threatened the democratic form of government. The American Legion began to grow steadily thereafter through an organization that elected officers on the national, state, and local levels and provided a voice for its members regarding a variety of national concerns. During the Depression the American Legion distinguished itself in particular through the expansion of local programs targeted at youth. Of particular note were the founding of American Legion Junior Baseball, the American Legion Oratorical Contest and Boys' State.

During the construction of the nominated property, the commander of the American Legion Post No. 27, which was the twenty-seventh American Legion Post established in Arkansas, was D. A. "Slim" Burson. Burson also supervised the construction of the building. The building committee consisted of the chairman, Fred C. Givens, Lee Rogers, L.A. Passarelli, Frank Kelley, and Tom Eads, who was also the building contractor. The post was designed by T. Ewing Shelton, a noted local architect. All of the stonework was laid by Frank and Frankie Kelley.

The construction of the American Legion Post No. 27 was financed through donations and a $7,000 loan, which was repaid in a few years by holding 25 cent per person dances in the building. Upon completion in 1940, the nominated property was named the Lynn Shelton Post No. 27 to honor the first soldier from Fayetteville that was killed in the Great War. The name was later amended to the Shelton-Tucker Post No. 27 to commemorate _____ Tucker, a Fayetteville native killed at Pearl Harbor. Both soldiers were enlisted men.

In 1994, the nominated property was sold to Dallas and Dee Wright, who changed the name to "Legion Plaza" and converted the interior into office space.

The Lynn Shelton American Legion Post No. 27 is being nominated under Criterion A with local significance as the only extant historic structure associated with the American Legion Post in Fayetteville. Under Criterion C, the building is locally significant for the quality and method of construction, which features contrasting styles of stonework.

Memorandum

To: National Register of Historic Places Files

From: Keeper of the National Register of Historic Places Carol P. Shull

Subject: Effect of government shutdown on National Register listing procedures

During the month-long government shutdown, this National Register nomination passed its 45th day due date and was automatically listed in the National Register. This action is governed by the following sections of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1996, as amended:

TITLE 1

Section 101 (16 U.S.C. 470a)

(a)(3) Nominations to the National Register

...Subject to paragraph (6), any property nominated under this paragraph or under section 110(a)(2) shall be included on the National Register on the date forty-five days after receipt by the Secretary of the nomination and the necessary documentation, unless the Secretary disapproves such nomination within such forty-five day period or unless an appeal is filed under paragraph (5).

(a)(6) Owner participation in nomination process

...If the owner or owners of any privately owned property, or a majority of the owners of such properties within the district in the case of an historic district, object to such inclusion or designation, such property shall not be included on the Nation Register or designated as a National Historic Landmark until such objection is withdrawn.

As a result of the government shutdown, any nomination that was date stamped received and that was at the National Register 45 days between December 18 and January 11 is listed in the National Register as of the 45th day, even if the nomination was not entered in the NRIS, published in the Federal Register for comment, or reviewed.

This does not apply to nomination appeals, nominations where a majority of private owners have objected to listing that are to be determined eligible, or requests for determinations of eligibility from Federal agencies.
