

1. Hickam Field and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, ca. 1941. Ford Island is on extreme left. Hickam's row of double hangars and runways are right center.

Courtesy, National Archives Hawaii

2.. Hangar No. 11, Hickam Field, December 7, 1941.

Courtesy, Defense Audiovisual Agency

SC 127024

Hawaii

Japanese bombing of Hickam Field , 7 Dec. 1941
Rear view of damaged hanger #11.

7 December 1941

Sig Corps Photo

#W-HD-AM

UNCLASSIFIED by G-2& BPR

grv

3. Hickam Field's hangars today.

4. Enlisted men's barracks, Hickam Field, December 7, 1941.

Courtesy, Defense Audiovisual Agency

SC 127033

Hawaii

Japanese bombing of Hickam Field , 7 Dec. 1941

New barracks still burning after attack by Japanese planes.

7 December 1941

Sig Corps Photo

#W-HD-H

UNCLASSIFIED by G-2&BPR, 16 Dec 1941

grv

5. Casualties at the enlisted men's barracks, Hickam Field, December 7, 1941.

Courtesy, Defense Audiovisual Agency

SC 134880

Removing gas mask from soldier killed in action.
Hickam Field, T.H.

Original negative #W-HD-(12-7-41)-L received from Signal Officer, Hawaiian Dept., Dec. 26, 1941
4x5 orig neg

grv

6. Bullet holes still pockmark the barracks' walls. The structure now is an administrative building.

7. In 1941, this handsome structure was the headquarters for Hickam Field.

8. The 1941 air operations building at Hickam Field.

Photo by E.N. Thompson

October 1983

9. Hickam Field's water tower, a local landmark. Following the Japanese attack, the tower was covered with camouflage paint.