The Riverside Drive Historic Area is bounded by 4th Street and the alley between Greenup and Garrard Streets and the Ohio and Licking Rivers. From the earliest days of Covington this area was selected by many prominent people for building the finest homes of the city.

The houses that make up the area today date from the early 1800s. The area boasts 31 structures that are considered exceptionally good examples of their various styles of architecture.

The Thomas Carneal House, built in 1815 by one of the founders of Covington, is recognized as one of the finest brick houses of its type in the nation. It is of a transitional Georgian style with a number of Palladian influences. The brick work and iron details is of the best quality. This house still affords a tunnel leading to the Licking River, once used by slaves escaping to the North.

Several very fine large French Victorian houses are in the area as well as a number of houses with Gothic influences.
Riverside House, built by Charles McLaughlin, was inspired by the Southern mansion architecture with white column and double porch overlooking the Ohio River.

There are also two separate row-houses groups of excellent detail, one in the Greek Revival style and the other in Victorian townhouse style.

A small group of Regency houses cluster on the Ohio River bank, while several large Greek Revival mansions grace the inner area.

The Daniel C. Beard House is the home of the founder of the Boy Scouts of America and is a National Landmark.

This small area has an exceptional architectural record. It has been carefully preserved and restored, largely by individuals who live in the area. The majority of the residents are solidly behind the Northern Kentucky Heritage League preservation efforts and have worked consistently for the area's protection. College professors of architecture bring their students here to learn from what has been called "a museum of architectural gems." And artists are a usual sight as they capture the grace and color of the area for posterity.

Daniel Carter Beard (the first national commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America and often called its founder) lived in a brick Victorian house on 3rd Street. Beard's first club was known as the "Sons of Daniel Boone" and it was this group which he turned into the Boys Scouts organization in 1910. His former home is a Registered National Landmark.

Even the names of the streets in the Riverside Area have historical significance. Garrard & Shelby were Kentucky governors and Kennedy was the pioneer who first bought the land and settled on the site which was to become Covington.
