The significance of St. Augustine Church is architectural. Its architect was a Dominican priest-missionary, Father Samuel C. Mazzuchelli, an amazingly accomplished architect-builder who designed and erected at least twenty and possibly as many as twenty-five churches in the upper Mississippi valley, mostly in the lead-mining areas of southwestern Wisconsin, northwestern Illinois and northeastern Iowa, although he is credited with having built one church in Green Bay. A number of his churches still stand and are in active use, but most have been altered to accommodate needs of larger congregations. St. Augustine Church, out of active use for nearly a century, is the only known Mazzuchelli church which has undergone no alteration.

Father Mazzuchelli was born in Milan in 1806, was educated and became a Dominican in Italy, and came to the United States at twenty-two. So far as is known he had no architectural training, but for an amateur he has left a heritage of architecture that would do justice to a highly accomplished professional. Perrin describes Father Mazzuchelli's St. Augustine Church at New Diggings as "Perhaps the most curious of the Greek and Gothic Revival combinations [in the state]," and says further, "This building...is one of the genuine architectural gems in the state of Wisconsin...an important element of Wisconsin's cultural legacy. The preservation of this building should be regarded as a public responsibility."¹

Now partially restored, preserved and maintained by the Knights of Columbus, St. Augustine Church is open to the public on Sunday afternoons in the summertime, and on infrequent but appropriate occasions, usually related to events in Father Muzzuchelli's life, Mass is still celebrated there.
