DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

St. Joseph's Catholic Church is a fine old red brick church which was built on a native limestone foundation extending about four feet above the ground.

Most impressive to one approaching the church are the two identical steeples towering over all the neighboring buildings and trees. These towers begin as squares and then are quite nicely transformed into octagons. This transformation is executed very gracefully by first cutting off the square corners at the clock level; the next logical step is an octagon roof with equal sides.

Even the interest of the steeple roof is not left to chance, with its band to strengthen the form and small windows to arouse curiosity. As the eye moves down the towers to the ground, the quality of masonry work makes a strong impression. All details are carried out in brick, and this adherence to a single building material creates a design that enables all features to be in perfect harmony with one another.

The cross-shaped plan is echoed in the gable roof with rose windows below each gable. All lintels incorporate brick used in a radial pattern, and the sills are also brick. Further depth and richness is developed in the structure through the use of pilasters and simple dentil work below the roof eaves.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

St. Joseph's Parish in Topeka was organized in 1886 by Father Francis Henry, who was pastor for 46 years until his death in 1932. St. Joseph's was a German national parish where all services were held in the German language. In the early years a two-story brick building afforded facilities for a church, school rooms, and pastor's quarters.

Plans for a new church were delivered by the architect Standaher of Rock Island, Illinois, on July 1, 1898. Construction quickly began and the greater portion of the church was built in 1899. The availability of funds determined the amount of work which was completed each year. Except for the furnish+ ings, it appears the building itself was completed by 1901. The altars were purchased in 1904, the pipe organ in 1906, and the final project was the paving of the street and the frescoing in 1909.

St. Joseph's Catholic Church is an outstanding Kansas example of a large 19th century brick church building. The architectural style shows Romanesque influences.
