DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This Victorian frame cottage has received much care through the years. The most dominant feature of the facade is the projecting octagonal bay at the left (the parlor), with its long 6/6 double hung windows with shutters. A porch extends for the remainder of the facade, in front of the entrance and living room windows. The entrance is on center of the house, with a paneled door with long arched double panels of glass. The facade wall is surfaced with finely executed flat paneling, whereas the remainder of the exterior is of un-beaded weatherboard. Eave corners have double brackets which support a projecting cornice that is very delicate in scale. In contrast, the flat un-ornamented frieze is very deep. Straight pediments over the windows repeat the cornice. There are three gabled dormers on the roof, the one on the facade with an arched louvered opening, the ones on the sides with peaked louvered openings. (See later reference to ironwork). All detailing in the house can be characterized as relatively small in scale and delicate. However, there is a lack of flamboyancy in the detailing (other than on the facade) that places this as a pre-war house, which supports the theory of the current owner that it was built in about 1854.

It is probable that the facade is part of an addition at the front of the house which could have been executed in the 1870's. This would explain a somewhat un-resolved (but not unpleasant) roof massing and the change in exterior wall treatment at the front. However, if such an addition was made, it is most notable that it was very much in character with the original house.

This respect for the design of the house is also shown in the delicate ironwork at the porch and the iron gates at the drive at the right, which are known tohave been added in this century. They are, however, in character with it. The very fine and beautiful iron crinilation across the ridge of the main roof could well have been part of any work done in the 1870's in that it is more decorative that other detailing of the house's exterior.

None of these alterations detract from the significance of this fine house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

This Victorian frame cottage is significant among notable houses in Macon because, although there are other examples of this style in the area, all are more imposing and lack its delicate scale and charm.

This lowely old cottage is believed to have been built about 1856 by Calder Baynard Willingham on College Street, a few doors from Wesleyan Female College, which was the first college in the world chartered to grant degrees to women. It is located on College Hill in the prime residential heritage area of Macon.

Willingham was one of Macon's early civic leaders. He worked diligently for a Chamber of Commerce, a city hospital, a new bridge across the Ocmulgee River, and a modern hotel for the town. He, too, was an active lay leader in the Baptist Church and served as chairman of the Building Committee for a new chapel for Mercer University, a Baptist College here in Macon. In 1899 C. B. Willingham, along with B. E. Willingham, established Macon's fifth large cotton mill.

While the Willinghams lived in this house on College Street, their son, Alfred Ross Willingham, was born in 1878. A. R. Willingham became, by any standards, one of Macon's most prominent citizens in the early twentieth century.

In 1882 the Willinghams sold the house to James E. Ellis, who later that same year sold it to Mrs. Mary Josephine Lunday Hill, widow of James Adams Hill. It was the Hill's daughter, Laura, who lived in the house until her death in 1964.

After the death of Miss Hill, her heirs sold the old home place to Mr. Giles O'Neal, whose grandfather was Miss Hill's employer for fifty-four years. The O'Neals' have furnished the house with some articles which came from Overlook, the former O'Neal home which is now Stratford Academy.

The railing around the front porch is the balcony rail from the old Union depot on Fourth Street (now Broadway) where ex-President of the Confederacy Jefferson Davis addressed Maconites on May 3, 1886, and where he introduced Winnie as "my daughter, the child of the Confederacy." Wrought iron gates beside the house were obtained from the famed Rose Hill Cemetery, and a white wooden gate was formerly on the property of the Congressman Charles L. Bartlett house on Ash Street. Perhaps the crowning point, however, is the Adam mantel in the left parlor of the cottage, dating back to about 1700.
