Summary Paragraph

The Oakdale Historic District is located approximately 11/2 miles south of Downtown Mobile. A late 19th and early 20th century neighborhood, the district is representative of such developments in Mobile during that period. Oakdale continues the 19th century grid pattern that characterizes most of the city. The area is well shaded with oaks and pines and contains approximately 511 acres. Most of the resources in the district are one- to two-story residential buildings. They generally are executed in the Queen Anne, Craftsman and various Revival styles, as well as the Ranch and Minimal Traditional styles. There is one landscaped park in the area, the R.V. Taylor Memorial Park. This park was developed before the outbreak of World War II and is located next to the Oaklawn Homes, which were built in 1940.

Narrative Description

The Oakdale Historic District is located south of the downtown area and consists of 1209 primary buildings covering an area of approximately 511 acres. The district is bounded on the north by Virginia Street, on the east by Interstate 10, on the south by Preston Avenue and on the west by South Ann Street.

The Oakdale Historic District (1853-1962) was settled as a late 19th and early 20th century working class neighborhood in close proximity to the Broad Street, Washington Avenue, Marine Street, and Ann Street trolley lines. Most blocks in the neighborhood are approximately 300 feet by 400 feet with several irregularly shaped blocks formed at the junction of the earliest streets and the later, turn-of-the-century streets. These streets are asphalt paved in a grid pattern, concrete curbed and most are flanked by concrete sidewalks. A few blocks retain their original 15 foot alleyways; however, most of the alleyways have been vacated and incorporated into adjoining lots.

The streets in Oakdale average a width of 50 feet, although Broad Street is a 100 foot wide boulevard. The streets are lined with rectangular lots averaging a frontage of 50 feet by 150 feet deep. Occasionally, lots have been doubled or subdivided. Houses in the district are set back 15 to 20 feet with a few set back 30 feet and with informally landscaped yards, although a few are more heavily planted and well shaded by numerous live oaks.

Housing forms and styles throughout the district reflect the range of styles and forms popular from 1900 to 1960. Housing forms found in the district include one and two story T-plans, irregularly massed plans, bungalows, Four Squares, Minimal Traditional and early Ranch. These forms appear in a variety of styles such as Late Victorian, Queen Anne, Classical and other period revivals, and Craftsman. Two very early 19th century cottages remaining in the district are a reminder of the area's early beginnings.

The Oakdale Historic District is primarily residential, with 1185 (98%) out of 1209 buildings constructed as housing. Residences are concentrated throughout the district except along Broad Street, which is a commercial corridor. Most of the residential buildings are one story in height with the remainder divided between one-and-one half story and two story examples. The majority of all resources are frame construction. The remaining buildings are typically brick, brick veneer, or concrete block.

Archaeological Component

Although no formal archaeological survey has been made of this area, the potential for subsurface remains is good. Buried portions may contain significant information that may be useful in interpreting the entire area.

Inventory

The following information was compiled from historic research and field surveys by Mr. Shaun Wilson, a Preservation Consultant with the Mobile Historic Development Commission. Beginning in October of 2009 and progressing through September of 2010, Mr. Wilson did a thorough survey of the entire district, photographing and describing both the contributing and noncontributing buildings. Most construction dates are circa, based on the period of development of the particular street on which the building is located and the architectural characteristics of the building itself. In the case of exact dates, these were obtained by city directory references, title and tax record research. Other sources include published material from the Municipal Archives and unpublished material maintained in the files of the Mobile Historic Development Commission. The majority of outbuildings were not counted as they are small, utilitarian in design and located at the rear of the property, which is not clearly seen from the street. However, garage/apartments located near the street were counted. Buildings in which porches have been enclosed for additional living space have been counted as noncontributing; whereas those with screened porches have been counted as contributing.

Inventory Key

Each property description begins with an inventory number, which runs sequentially upwards. The address follows, then the date, then the name of the business or church if relevant, then the architectural description. Finally, the NR photo number of the photograph depicting the property where appropriate, followed by a "C" for contributing and "NC" for noncontributing.

Period of Significance (justification)

within the past 50 years.

The period of significance begins c. 1870, the construction date of the earliest building (inv. #685, 970 Gorgas St.) that contributes to the historic character of the district, and ends with 1962, the fifty year cut-off date when this nomination was first completed.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance and applicable criteria.)

The Oakdale Historic District is locally significant under National Register Criteria C for its collection of late $19^{\rm th}$ and early to mid- $20^{\rm th}$ century architecture. The range of styles include late Victorian, Queen Anne and Classical Revival, and early to mid $20^{\rm th}$ century styles include Four squares, Colonial Revival, Craftsman, Minimal Traditional, and Ranch homes. Churches are either front-gabled ecclesiastical buildings with one or two towers, or basilica plans with Neo-Classical styling. Commercial buildings are small and utilitarian in design. One part commercial block buildings of one and two stories predominate.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

The proposed Oakdale Historic District is significant under Criterion C for architecture for its large concentration of late $19^{\rm th}$ and early to mid- $20^{\rm th}$ century houses that serves to illustrate the shift in housing styles during that period. Late $19^{\rm th}$ century architectural styles include Victorian, Queen Anne, and Classical Revival. Early to mid-20th century styles include the Four Square, Colonial Revival, Craftsman/bungalow, Minimal Traditional and early Ranch homes. Popular styles in the district often reflect national taste, but also illustrate regional influences on national architectural trends. Elements such as raised brick foundations, large recessed or projecting porches, low pitched roofs with wide eaves, and extensive use of windows and doors for light and ventilation are common features. This was a response to local climatic conditions and did not change until attempts were made to mechanically control the interior climate in buildings. These factors, along with common architectural elements of material, size and scale, assist in unifying the district. In this way, Oakdale compares favorably with other locally significant historic districts in Mobile, such as the Old Dauphin Way Historic District (NR listing June 15, 1984), Midtown Historic District (NR listing March 01, 2000) and the Leinkauf Historic District (NR listing June 24, 1987) that were developed in the same period to the west of the downtown area and are noted for these same features. However, Oakdale serves to illustrate development to the south of Downtown Mobile. This development was often constrained by marshy conditions caused by the close proximity to Mobile Bay. A small area to the north of Oakdale, called Down the Bay, is ineligible due to urban renewal programs that removed significant portions of historic fabric. This only increases Oakdale's significance as it is the only remaining late 19th and early to mid-20th century neighborhood south of the downtown area.

Developmental history/additional historic context information (if appropriate)

The Oakdale Historic District is composed of sixteen subdivisions that include: the Wilson's 1st Addition (Deed Book 73, 171) (1894); Wilson's 2nd Addition (Deed Book 80, 190) (1896); the Cowan Addition (Deed Book 77, 357) (1896); Duval Street Subdivision (Deed Book 85, 345) (1898); Oak Hill Subdivision (Deed Book 85,380) (1898); the Quigley Subdivision (Deed Book 88,1) (1898); Arlington Subdivision (Deed Book 156,196-197) (1898); the Colgin's Annex to Oakdale (Deed Book 101,455)(1902); the Sims' Subdivision (Deed Book 106,89) (1903); the O'Donnell Homestead (Deed Book 137,269)(1903); Sims' 2nd Addition (Deed Book 120,486)(1904); Wilson Subdivision (Deed Book 145,12)(1910); the McQuillan Tract in Oakdale (Deed Book 156,318)(1920); Preston Subdivision (Deed Book 156,446)(1924); the Oakdale Subdivision (Deed Book 156, 459-463)(1924); and the Kelly Park Subdivision (Deed Book 4,509) (1947). These subdivisions were developed out of the older Choctaw Point Tract, which was a Spanish Land Grant dating to 1792 (Hamilton 1976, 496). A portion of the district extending from Kelly to Ann Street comprises part of the Bascombe Tract. It is clear from the William R. Robertson map of Mobile, drawn in 1853, that plans had been made for expansion of the city to the south, but the earliest maps designating this area as Oakdale are the 1904 Sanborn Map and Peavy's 1911 City Map. No information has been discovered as to the source of the name, neither has an earlier plat map for an Oakdale been found. The Colgin's Annex to Oakdale (Deed Book 101,455) was recorded in 1902; however, an Oakdale Subdivision plat (Deed Book 156, 459-463) was not recorded until 1924. Washington Avenue, Broad, Ann and Marine Streets were the earliest north-south streets in the district, and Baltimore and Tennessee Streets were the earliest east-west streets. An analysis of early street atlases indicates that these streets were early 19th century extensions of Mobile's original grid plan running from the urban core to the rural countryside that were constructed in anticipation of expansion. A number of streets in the district have undergone name changes. These include: Florida Street (renamed to Gorgas Street), part of Duval Street (now called Arlington Street), a portion of Washington Avenue (changed to Broad Street), Easton Street (renamed Bernice Hudson Drive), Craft Street (now Freeman Street), and Franklin Street (called Alba Street). Florida and Duval Streets were renamed between 1904 and 1924. The other changes occurred after 1955. The streets in Oakdale run parallel to each other with the exception of a portion of Broad Street and Washington Avenue, Marine Street and Racetrack Lane.

Although there are two early houses located in the district (970 Gorgas Street c. 1870/Inventory #685 and 709 North Carolina Street c. 1880/Inventory #919), the Oakdale area remained relatively unsettled until the very late 19th century. The period immediately following the Civil War saw a decline in Mobile's fortunes. The port silted up and trade dwindled. Cotton was no longer king and failed speculative ventures resulted in the City of Mobile being bankrupt by 1875. Having borrowed heavily to finance various improvement programs, the city's debt had climbed to a staggering $5 million dollars (Thomason 10/23/2003). It was not until the latter half of the 1890's that Mobile began to recover. The port diversified with timber and fruit being important products. A number of late 19th century Victorian cottages (866 Baltimore Street c. 1900/Photo #4, 905 S. Dearborn Street c. 1900/Photo #12 and 958 Gorgas Street c. 1895/Photo #14) were built in the area during this period. Regional characteristics are evident and in most cases these cottages have a square form and a single story with raised brick pier foundations, recessed or projecting porches, low pitched roofs and large windows. They are found not only in Oakdale but throughout Mobile's older neighborhoods (Gould 1988, 117-118).

By 1900, the majority of houses in the area had dropped the popular late Victorian era ornamentation to become a plainer early 20th century cottage. Existing housing stock reveals these generic cottages were constructed well into the 20th century (Gould 1988, 117-118). The City was prospering again by World War I and it is reflected in census data. The population of the City in 1890 was some 30,000. By 1920 the population had doubled to 60,000. The resulting population growth resulted in new housing developments to the west and to the south, including Oakdale (McLaurin & Thomason 1981, 95 & 106). The area's population had increased to such a level that the first school, Arlington (demolished 2012), was opened in 1923(Sanborn Fire Insurance Map 1925). This was followed by St. Matthew's School, a Roman Catholic parochial school associated with the church of the same name, in 1939 (Ibid 1925). Although Broad Street had a number of larger homes, indicative of several upper middle class families, business activity also increased along this north/south corridor. The area's one fire station was also located here.

City Directories from the 1920's through the 1950's reveal a mostly working to lower middle class neighborhood with the exception of Broad Street which rivaled Government Street. Also, City Directories reveal the area to be mostly white with few African-Americans living in the area. However, information is not available after 1951, as the directories stopped identifying race after that date. Occupations typically found in the area include: carpenter, machinist, barber, and clerk. The docks and the Downtown area were easily reached by means of public transportation with the streets within walking distance of the trolley lines along Washington Avenue, Broad, Marine and South Ann Street (Mobile Light & R.R Company Map, 2005). A few relatively prosperous residents lived along Broad Street as evidenced by their homes which reflect the larger late 19th-early 20th century house forms and popular styles. These larger two-story Classical Revival (960 Bernice Hudson Drive c. 1900/Photo #7) and a few "picturesque" massed plans in the Queen Anne style (912 Broad Street c. 1890/Photo #10 and 951 Marine Street c. 1895/Photo #951) lingered through the early years of the 20th century throughout Mobile (Gould 1988, 247). Business activity steadily increased along this north/south corridor through the early 20th century. When one penetrates into the heart of the district, smaller, less elaborate speculative houses were built for the middle class workers who moved into the area.

Early 20th century taste turned to less elaborate styles of architecture in reaction to the late Victorian period of ostentatiousness (Baker 1994, 117). As a result, a large part of Oakdale's early 20th century architecture reflects various combinations of Classical and Period Revivals, and Bungalow/Craftsman (Gould 1988, 247). These changing tastes are illustrated by several examples of the American Four Square (807 Broad Street c. 1915/Photo #9), a simple early 20th century house form (Ibid 250). Few in number, examples of Classical Revival seem to be reserved for the larger residences and ecclesiastical buildings in the area (906 Garrity Street c. 1910/Photo #13).

Craftsman style houses (1155 Gorgas Street c. 1920/Photo #15, 752 Kentucky Street c. 1925/Photo #16 and 804 Marine Street c. 1925/Photo #17) are also found in the Oakdale Historic District. This style promoted a respect and aesthetic for the natural qualities of wood, brick, stone, stucco, and tile (Baker 1994, 114). One of the most popular building types in the area after 1910 was the American bungalow (1057 Arlington Street c. 1925/Photo #2 and 1256 Baltimore Street c. 1930/Photo #6). Influenced by the Craftsman, Japanese, Prairie, Spanish Colonial, Classical Revival, Swiss chalet and Adirondack style of architecture, the bungalow was built in many variations depending upon geographic region (Ibid 108). Bungalows in Oakdale most frequently exhibit combinations of the Craftsman, Mission, and Classical Revival styles. A renewed interest in romanticism after World War I combined with the Craftsman philosophy produced the Period Revival style (Ibid, 118). Moderately popular in the area between 1925 and 1940, this style is found mostly in small houses (759 Charles Street c. 1925/Photo #11 and 1008 Miami Street c. 1925/Photo #19).

World War Two saw a rapid increase in population in Oakdale as workers entered the city to work at the shipyards (Thomason 2001, 155 & 215). The bungalow continued to remain popular until 1940 as a cheap, speculative housing unit. After World War II, a number of houses were constructed in the popular styles of the time, particularly Minimal Traditional (1109 Alba Street c. 1950/Photo #1, 769 Baltimore Street c. 1945/Photo #3 and 1106 Bernice Hudson Drive c. 1945/Photo #8) and early Ranch houses (1056 Oakdale Avenue c. 1960/Photo #20). These often replaced older houses in the oldest sections of the neighborhood, and were the preferred styles in the areas developed after World War II. However, they are no less important as they demonstrate the continued viability of the district. Located in the heart of the district next to the R.V. Taylor Park is one of the earliest public housing units in Mobile. The Oaklawn Homes were completed in 1940 and consist of 8 two story barracks type buildings and 4 one story duplexes (Sanborn Fire Insurance Map 1955). A small administrative building is located at the front of the complex. This public housing complex was originally constructed to house white, wartime workers. The homes are now owned and maintained by the Mobile Housing Board.

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The boundary of the Oakdale Historic District was drawn to include the largest concentration of historic resources in the area known as "Oakdale" by local tradition and which can be verified through historical research.
