Property Name: Cave City Commercial District (Barren County MRA)

County: Barren

Date of Action

Amended Items in Nomination:

Section 7:

The historic district did not include a complete inventory of resources, supplying an inventory form for contributing buildings. The text references "one intrusion," which likely referred to the Peoples bank Building at 101 Broadway. Photographs of the district included in the nomination include a streetscape view of Broadway that shows this building with a non-historic covering. The cover has since been removed, exposing the second floor windows and brick corbelling, as well as elements of the historic storefront. Still missing is the pressed metal clad oriel window over the corner entry. The loss of that major decorative feature notwithstanding, the building survives as a major architectural element at the corner of Broadway and First Street. It contributes to the historic district.

This SLR replaces one created by Roger Reed on 2/28/2012. The official action took place on that date.

The Kentucky State Historic Preservation Office was notified of this amendment.

Cave City Commercial District

Located at the northern edge of Barren County is the town of Cave City. Boasting a population of 2,500. Cave City is the second largest community in Barren County. Located near Interstate 65 and Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Cave City is also only eight miles from the Mammoth Cave National Park. It's proximity to this large tourist attraction has fostered large strip development, but the mid-19th century center of town remains intact.

The commercial area lies adjacent and perpendicular to the railroad tracks. Contained within two city blocks, the district contains 17 commercial buildings. Of this total number of structures nine were included in the survey. Only one intrusion exists within the district and no empty lots break up the streetscape.

The Cave City Commercial District has significance as being the last intact section of a once architecturally cohesive and thriving business area. While not extremely important individually, as a group these commercial buildings signify the important economic growth which Cave City experienced during the last half of the 19th century.

Established in 1853, Cave City was a planned community, established primarily because of its proximity to the Mammoth Cave resort and the proposed Louisville and Nashville Railroad line. During that year four Louisville speculators purchased the land for the town site. By 1860 the population had grown to one hundred and fifty.

Between 1870 and the first quarter of the 20th century, Cave City experienced a steady period of economic expansion. It was during that time that the largest growth occurred in the commercial area. All of the commercial structures are vernacular, but some achieved distinction by their importance to the community. The H. Y. Davis Bank building (Bn-289) and the Old Dixie Garage Building (Bn-291) were two such buildings.
