STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE:

Local legend says that this was the Choctaw village site and the street on which this house lies was originally lined with Indian wigwams.

The Barbour-Estes house is architecturally significant as an example of a single pen log cabin that has developed into a hall-and-parlour with central hall house type. It employs Greek Revival features in its entrance, with transom and sidelights, and with square columns along the gallery. However, its asymmetrical bays indicate the vernacular origins. In Clarke County, the Barbour-Estes house is one of five of the undercut gallery type.
