The Central Green, Looking East

Photographer: Dorothy Fue Wong; September 1992

A black and white photograph of a golf course. In the foreground, a large, mature tree with a thick trunk stands prominently. The middle ground is a wide, grassy fairway with several other trees scattered across it. In the background, several houses with light-colored exteriors and dark roofs are visible, partially obscured by more trees. The sky is bright and overcast.

A black and white photograph of a garden area. In the foreground, there are several large, mature trees with thick, textured trunks and dense foliage. The trees are arranged in a line, with some leaning slightly. In the background, a building with a light-colored facade and dark windows is visible. The ground is covered with grass and fallen leaves. The overall scene is a well-maintained garden area.

Photographer: Dorothy Fue Wong; September 1992

A black and white photograph of a two-story townhouse unit. The building has a light-colored, possibly white, stucco or plaster exterior. On the upper floor, there are two windows: one on the left is a double window with a metal balcony railing, and one on the right is a smaller window. On the ground floor, there is a large window with a grid pattern, likely a garage door, and a covered entrance to the right. The entrance is partially obscured by a large, dark bush. A concrete walkway leads from the bottom right towards the entrance. The building is surrounded by trees and shrubs, with shadows cast across the facade. The overall style is modern and minimalist.
