Description

The Bloom House is a one-and-one-half story, wood frame Craftsman residence. Its dominant, imposing gables which intersect with the principal gable-on-hip roof line conceal the rectangular, balanced plan. A single square, brick chimney rises through the roof at the rear of the house, just inside the wall. The roof is covered with green ceramic tile, the walls are clad in fieldstone, and the entire structure sits upon a continuous foundation of cast concrete.

The southern or front elevation consists simply of two gable end bays flanking a side gable wall and entrance bay. A low gable roof covers the entry, which is flanked by two four-over-one wood sash windows. The original windows in the flanking bays have been replaced by large, single panes, as has the original window in the central shed dormer above. Though the opposite (northern) elevation is blank, the windows on the eastern and western elevations are four-over-one wood sash, as are the windows in the exposed gable ends of the gable-on-hip roof.

The Bloom House has suffered the unfortunate removal of the original windows in the front gabled bays and in the dormer; there have also been recent garage additions to the rear of the house. However, the design retains the greater portion of its integrity and original appearance.

Significance

Criterion C, local significance

The Bloom House (Part E, Historic Context #4) is the best example in Searcy of a one-and-one-half story, wood frame, side entry Craftsman style residence clad in fieldstone. Constructed in 1930, this house is typical of the third period in the evolution of Craftsman style designs in White County. Its floor plan has become very regular and symmetrical and features only the vestiges of the irregularity of plan and elevation which was one of the hallmark features of this building style.
