Immanuel Church was organized in 1832, after Mary Hayes Willis Gloster, a widow of 52, rode horseback from LaGrange to Franklin, Tennessee, to seek the help of the Rev. James Hervey Otey (her Godson) in organizing an Episcopal Church in LaGrange. The Rev. Thomas Wright was sent to LaGrange as missionary priest for the District of West Tennessee, and through his efforts five Episcopal churches were organized within a year. In addition to Immanuel they were: St. Luke's, Jackson; Christ Church, Brownsville; Calvary Church, Memphis; St. Paul's, Randolph. But Immanuel Church was the first.

By 1843 the present church building had been erected and Immanuel Church was consecrated. During the Civil War, it was used as an armory and hospital for Union troops. The pews were ripped out and used as coffins for the Union dead, walls were defaced by vandals, shutters torn away and windows broken. In 1900, a cyclone stormed through LaGrange and razed every other church, but Immanuel stood. In recent years, many improvements and repairs have been made, while leaving as much as possible the way it was originally. Fixtures have been wired for electricity; a central heating and cooling system has replaced the pot-bellied stoves; plumbing and a restroom have been installed; and the windows, which had been boarded up since the Civil War, have been replaced by new windows which are replicas of the original windows.

The unique place Immanuel Church holds in the history of the Episcopal Church in West Tennessee accounts for the keen interest taken by so many in its restoration and preservation through the years. Services are held regularly at Immanuel Church on the 2nd, 4th, and 5th Sundays of each month at 11 a.m. This landmark is a valuable part of our heritage.

The distinctive architecture, together with the fine interior woodwork, makes Immanuel Church unique in the area, and worthy of preservation.
