Crisp contrast of red brick and white stone detailing mark the Doric tetrastyle facade of this courthouse. The building features a recessed two story porch with in antis columns and the words 'Atkinson County Courthouse' inscribed in the frieze. The flat roof is adorned by a small domed clock tower; hooded clocks face in the four directions. Quoins on the corners of the building give it a feeling of weight.

On the interior an s-curve gallery remains in the courtroom. Acoustical tile has replaced the original ceiling.

THEMATIC NATIONAL REGISTER NOMINATION - GEORGIA COURTHOUSES

ARCHITECTURAL SURVEY FORM     ATKINSON COUNTY COURTHOUSE

SIGNIFICANCE:

This is a J. J. Baldwin design that is a variation on a Neo-Classical theme. It is unlike the Candler, Evans, or Treutlen courthouses but still adheres to Classical details.
