DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The First Baptist Church is a cruciform building, standing on the corner of Commonwealth, the main ceremonial avenue of the Back Bay, and Clarendon, a cross street. The 176 foot high corner tower, built in the angle between the nave and transept, is its main feature. The tower rests upon four piers connected by great round arches. These form a carriage way opening onto an arcaded entrance porch built out from the end of the transept, flush with the tower, on Clarendon Street.

Three immense rose windows are located in each of the visible ends of the cross-gable roof, all designed by Richardson after European models. The window on the Clarendon Street side is a "Wheel of Fortune" type, with a cross of pilasters applied over the exterior tracery. Later in the 19th century the Baptists added stained glass by Tiffany. His stained glass window of Christ by the Waters, in the south transept, is outstanding.

The Clarendon Street arcade and all the large windows are round-arched, but rows of grouped square headed windows occur beneath the rose windows in the nave and transepts. No buttresses or projections of any kind break the exterior walls and a moderately pitched roof frames the great rose windows.

Standing above all and leading ones eyes upward, is the great tower. It is perhaps best seen at a distance, for relations between the church and the tower are less than perfect, and one might wish to see it as a free standing entity. Of the tower Hitchcock wrote: "The upper half of the tower is an extremely ingenious and original creation. The great belfry arches in two orders are perfectly scaled to the whole. The frieze...considering the scale and the distance from which it must always be seen, is equal to that of Rude's Marseillaise on the Arc de l'Etoile or Carpeau's Dance on the Paris Opera. The gilded metal trumpets of the angels...accent the corners of the silhouette against the sky in the most brilliantly picturesque manner conceivable. Yet on top of this frieze Richardson successfully returned to the simplicity and structural quality of the lower part of the tower. Above the strongly shadowed corbel table there is a plain roof of moderate pitch, not quite a flat Italian roof, and certainly not a Gothic spire."¹

The high walls of the interior provide plenty of room for the galleries added by the Baptists. Whatever might have been planned in the interior in the sense of decoration or painting was never added. In the ceiling the timber trusses are simple and structural. We are left today with "nothing but magnificent space, a prime architectural quality which few appreciate unembellished."²

Hitchcock writes further that "The significant character of this church derives from fundamentals. These fundamentals are what distinguish one style of architecture from another: the proportions of exterior mass and of interior space; the relative importance and placing of the elements, structural and ornamental, which break up the main surfaces."³ Van Rensselaer echoes this in writing that "Romanesque forms are paramount, and, though they are not treated in at all the same spirit which Richardson's later works reveal, they give the building extreme importance as the first which in any way predicts the ultimate course of his development."⁴

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Designed by Henry Hobson Richardson and completed in 1872, the First Baptist Church is his first work which was definitely Romanesque rather than Gothic. With this church, as Hitchcock has written, Richardson "turned the corner of his career. The rest of his great work could easily follow from this beginning."¹ It was the remarkable impression made by this building which brought Richardson an invitation to enter the competition for Trinity Church, perhaps his greatest work, which stands just two blocks away.

It was just after Richardson won the competition for the First Baptist (Brattle Square) Church that Charles F. McKim entered his firm. McKim's first architectural assignment was to complete the working drawings. Another of Richardson's associates, Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, modelled the massive tower frieze, carved in place by Italian stone masons. This sculpture was Bartoldi's first major work in this country, and his colossal figures of Charles Sumner, Longfellow, Emerson, Hawthorne, Lincoln and Garibaldi, included in groupings representing Baptism, Communion, Marriage and Death, established his reputation. Standing at the corners of the tower frieze, the four gigantic angels with thier gilded trumpets, established the church as a favorite 19th century Boston landmark, which Bostonians affectionately labeled the "Church of the Holy Beanblowers."

The First Baptist Society was Founded in 1665 and built its first Meeting House at Salem and Stillman Streets in 1679. The Baptists worshiped in four other buildings before they came to the present First Baptist Church in 1882.

The building was begun in 1870 for the Brattle Square Unitarian Society. Although the interior was still unfinished, the first services were held in 1872, at which time acoustical failure was obvious. Because of this, and because of the fact that the Unitarians lost the church through mortgage foreclosure, it stood empty between 1875 and 1881. In 1882 it was purchased by the First Baptist Society, which erected galleries in each of the transepts and over the main entrance. This corrected the acoustical difficulties, as Richardson had said it would, and the Church has been in active use by that Society ever since. Both the original rose windows by Richardson and the stained glass by Tiffany, which the Baptists added later, are notable.

Incorporated into the tower are the quoins and cornerstones from the Old Brattle Square Meeting House. One cornerstone is marked "John Hancock, Esq., July 27, 1772," and the other "Jno. Greenleaf. 1772." Both were members and benefactors of the Society. The bell from the Brattle Square Meeting House, cast in 1809, hangs today in the First Baptist tower.

With the destruction of the Church of the Unity in Springfield, only two of the early public buildings which helped Richardson make his name remain. Trinity is one. The other is the First Baptist Church, the building which marks the beginning of his professional maturity, and one which led directly to the rich commissions which Richardson was later to receive.

My dear Senator Kennedy,

Knowing of your genuine interest in things historical, especially in Massachusetts, I am writing to you to ask for information and possible help.

I am the minister of the historic First Baptist Church of Boston. This 307 year old congregation is situated at Commonwealth Avenue and Clarendon Street in the Back Bay. Our edifice is an early H. H. Richardson designed building and along with our neighbor Trinity Church in Copley Square is a Community treasure.

The maintenance of this magnificent structure is an increasingly heavy burden for our Church. We recognize our privilege and responsibility as owners of this architectural treasure.

Will you kindly tell me of the present status in Congress of the Historic Preservation Grants Bill and the possibility of the authorization of the full amount? Secondly, may I enlist your powerful assistance in helping us to become enrolled in the National Registry of Historic Places? This will make it possible for us to make future application for some assistance in the proper maintenance of our Church.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Senator Kennedy:

It is a pleasure to respond to your inquiry on behalf of the Reverend J. Walter Sillen concerning the First Baptist Church of Boston.

On August 10 the President signed the fiscal year 1972 appropriations bill for the Department of the Interior. It provides for the President's budget request of $5,980,000 for matching grants to the States and to the National Trust for Historic Preservation for the acquisition and development of historic properties and for historic preservation survey and planning. (The authorization for fiscal year 1972 is $10 million.) By early fall the State of Massachusetts will be advised of its apportionment for acquisition and development grants. Further details of the grants-in-aid program are contained in the enclosed fact sheet.

In regard to enrolling the First Baptist Church of Boston in the National Register, we are enclosing a brochure which will explain the latter's operation and purposes. This program is administered by the National Park Service through State Liaison Officers appointed by the Governors. The State Liaison Officers are responsible for the conduct of surveys, the preparation of statewide historic preservation plans, the application for grants, as well as for the nomination of properties for inclusion in the National Register. Action to list the First Baptist Church of Boston on the National Register would originate in the office of the State Liaison Officer, the Honorable John F. X. Davoren, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Chairman, Massachusetts
Historical Commission, Office of the Secretary, State House, Boston, Massachusetts 02133. At present Dr. Richard W. Hale, Jr., is Acting Chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission.
We note that Mr. Sillen has already contacted him.

Grants-in-aid are meant for properties included in the National Register, the applications being consistent with an approved State historic preservation plan. Since grants are made to the States, a State has a responsibility to ensure that historic properties receiving Federal assistance are properly maintained.

We hope this information will be useful to you and Mr. Sillen. Your interest in historic preservation is deeply appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

RE: First Baptist Church Listing on National Register of Historic Places

My dear Senator Kennedy,

On November 3, 1971 I had a good visit with Secretary John F.X. Davoren at the State House. He called in Dr. Richard Hale, the Massachusetts Archives Curator, and we conferred for about twenty minutes. Dr. Hale said he was going to Washington on the following day and would present our case to the proper officials of the Department of the Interior. He and Secretary Davoren were most encouraging.

I feel that I have gone about as far as I can. When you have opportunity, a follow up on your part will put us in. You are among the busiest of men, I know, and the interest you and your staff have taken in this amazes and delights me. I hope that I can in some way show my appreciation.

With every good wish for a joyous Holiday Season.
