

This view of the Clay Street Cemetery is of the South side looking west. Trees need to be planted and sunken areas filled in. Patrolling of the area would help stop vandalism.

Photo courtesy of Alaska Linck 1978
Not to be reproduced without prior permission.

Photo courtesy of Alaska Linck 1978
Not to be reproduced without prior permission.

An overview of the Clay Street Cemetery, looking northwest toward the City of Fairbanks.

Large trees provide beauty, shade and a very serene and pleasant park-like atmosphere.

The Clay Street Cemetery as it looked before vandals and the elements destroyed the early markers.

University of Alaska Archives

