FEDERAL BUILDING - UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE

This black and white photograph captures the upper portion of a grand neoclassical building. The top edge is adorned with a decorative cornice featuring repeating scrollwork and shell motifs. Below this, a row of four rectangular windows is set within a stone frame. A prominent horizontal band below the windows contains the inscription "FEDERAL BUILDING - UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE" in large, raised, serif capital letters. The lower section of the image shows the tops of three fluted columns with highly detailed, acanthus-style capitals. Each column is positioned between a window, and a fourth column is partially visible on the far right. The windows below are larger and divided into four panes each. The overall architectural style is classical and imposing.
