Continuation SheetSection number 7 Page 1Description

During the Railroad Era (1870-1914) in White County a variety of vernacular house types were constructed. These were also built out of a variety of materials. Surviving examples from this period, however, are somewhat limited. The Chandler House is a good example of a two-story, frame gable entry building. It is clad with weatherboard, has a corrugated metal roof and the entire structure rests on stone piers.

Located on the northwest corner of County Roads 69 and 379, this building was constructed in the center of the small crossroad community of Stevens Creek. Even though the house was built c. 1885, it is still in good condition. The Chandler House faces south and this main elevation is dominated by a one-story porch that wraps around to the west elevation of the house. The porches hipped roof is supported by wood posts. A small piece of the northern edge of this porch has been enclosed. A single two-over-two double-hung aluminum sash window relieves its north elevation. The first floor of the original building is fenestrated with symmetrically placed four-over-four double-hung wood sash windows. A similar window is located in the southern second-story gable end of the structure. Symmetrically placed four-pane fixed frame windows are found on the east and west elevations of this floor. A centrally placed one-over-one double-hung sash window relieves the northern second-story gable end.

Rising from the gable peak in the center of the structure is a brick chimney. Stretching across the north elevation of the structure is a one-story shed roof room that was built at the same time as the main portion of the building. Single centrally placed windows relieve the east and west elevations of the building. The one on the east elevation is a four-over-four double-hung wood sash window while the western one is a one-over-one double-hung sash window that is not original. A single-story shed roof addition stretches across the north elevation of the building. It was added later and is clad with brick patterned asphalt roll. A single centrally placed four-over-four double-hung wood sash window is located on the west elevation of this addition while a single door enters the east elevation.

Significance

When this building was constructed, c. 1885, it was probably one of the first gable entry houses constructed in White County. This type of house was generally constructed around the turn of the century. A county-wide survey proved this. This survey also discovered that very few of these houses survive. For these reasons, the Chandler House is being nominated under Criterion C with local significance.

Reviewer's Comments

The boundaries of this property are presently located along building lines. A resource listed in the National Register should include all features of the property which contribute to its significance. In almost all cases this includes its historic setting. Page 77 of National Register Bulletin 16, Guidelines for Completing National Register of Historic Places Forms, states that "the boundaries of buildings should include the land surrounding the building, unless the lot occupied by the building contains no surrounding land as in the central business district of most cities."

Please revise the boundaries to include the property historically associated with the resource. If a portion of the original setting has lost its integrity, please explain.

Verbal Boundary Description:

Beginning at the point formed by the intersection of the western edge of County Road 379 with a perpendicular line running along the northern edge of County Road 327, proceed westerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the building's western elevation; thence proceed northerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the building's northern elevation; thence proceed easterly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running along the western edge of County Road 379; thence proceed southerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to the point of beginning.

Boundary Justification:

The original lot surrounding this property has been subdivided during the non-historic period and the current lot boundary is indefinite; therefore, this boundary includes all the property historically associated with this resource that retains its integrity.
