The Sam Cooley Barn is a two-story, wood frame animal/equipment/feed agricultural structure. It features a symmetrical, transverse crib plan with its axis running along the center of the east-west runway. Its stone pier foundation supports the vertical board walls, and the gable roof and its raised, gable roof vents are sheathed with metal.

The western elevation is accessed via the central vehicular entrance with a northern livestock entrance leading into the side animal shed. The upper part of the central entrance is covered by two hinged doors that can be opened to allow taller machinery into the barn. A single-leaf hay door finishes the elevation. The northern elevation is divided into five bays by the large vehicular entrances into the open side shed while the southern elevation is blank. The eastern elevation is virtually identical to the western elevation, as it is accessed by both the central vehicular entrance and the northern livestock entrance.

The interior of the barn is divided into four rooms on each side of the central drive, with three of the eight being feed bins with floors; the other stalls have dirt floors. The equipment shed to the south and the animal shed to the north are without partitions and are also without floors.

Significance

Criterion C, local significance

The Sam Cooley Barn is significant as the best example in the county from this era of White County history (Boom and Bust: The War and Depression Years, 1914-1939; Section E,4) of a two-story, gable roof barn of symmetrical, transverse crib plan constructed as early as 1915. Its design is noteworthy also for its use of the raised, gable roof vents, a feature found often in barns from other parts of the United States but uncommon in Arkansas. Furthermore, its ground floor square-footage and height are extraordinary for gable roof agricultural buildings in White County, as is the fact that it has survived at all.

This barn was constructed by Sam Cooley, the son of the earlier Bald Knob-area resident and farmer J.A. Cooley; it is in good condition.

Reviewer's Comments

The boundaries of this property are presently located along building lines. A resource listed in the National Register should include all features of the property which contribute to its significance. In almost all cases this includes its historic setting. Page 77 of National Register Bulletin 16, Guidelines for Completing National Register of Historic Places Forms, states that "the boundaries of buildings should include the land surrounding the building, unless the lot occupied by the building contains no surrounding land as in the central business district of most cities."

Please revise the boundaries to include the property historically associated with the resource. If a portion of the original setting has lost its integrity, please explain.

In the count in Section 3, this resource should be listed as a building, rather than a structure, since it was constructed to provide shelter.

Verbal Boundary Description:

Beginning at the point formed by the intersection of a line running parallel to the barn's eastern elevation and located 50 feet to the east thereof with a perpendicular line running parallel to the barn's northern elevation and located 50 feet to the north thereof (located 437.5 feet south of County Road 96 and 1,375 feet east of County Road 85), proceed westerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the western elevation of the barn; thence proceed southerly for a distance of approximately 200 feet along said line to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the southern elevation of the barn; thence proceed easterly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to a point formed by its intersection with a perpendicular line running parallel to the eastern elevation of the barn; thence proceed northerly along said line for a distance of approximately 200 feet to the point of beginning.

Boundary Justification:

This resource was constructed as part of a larger farmstead that has lost its integrity as such; thus, this boundary includes all the property known to be historically associated with this resource.
