Description Summary:

The Chambers Park Log Cabin is a one-story log building located in Chambers Park, Federalsburg, Maryland that was constructed in 1937 under the auspices of the National Youth Administration.

General Description:

The Chambers Park Log Cabin is a one-story gable-roofed building constructed in 1937 of round cypress logs saddle-notched at the corners. The north façade faces Liberty Road, and comprises a central entrance door of wood battens flanked on either side by a 6/6 sash window. The slope of the gable roof extends to form a small hood over the entrance. The east and west gable ends are marked by paired six-light casement windows. All windows are fitted with batten shutters. The rectangular building measures 24 by 36 feet and contains a single room, with logs exposed as the interior finish. The roof framing, consisting of common rafters, is also exposed on the interior. Originally, a 14 by 14 shed-roofed log extension housing a brick chimney was centered on the rear elevation; this extension was removed ca. 1993 because of deterioration, and the present stone chimney was constructed in its place. The gable roof is covered with wood shingles. The building rests on a concrete foundation.

Summary Statement of Significance:

The Chambers Park Log Cabin is significant under Criterion A for its association with the construction programs of the New Deal in the 1930s. Built under the auspices of the National Youth Administration (NYA), the cabin provided work for local carpenters and laborers and resulted in a meeting place for youth. The cabin derives additional significance for its architecture, as a representative example of a type of structure associated with these programs. While several such cabins survive in parks in Central and Western Maryland, examples are especially rare in the Eastern Shore region. The Chambers Park Log Cabin was among the first of its type constructed as a NYA project, and provided a model for at least two similar projects elsewhere in the region.

Resource History and Historic Context:

The log cabin was designed by local architect S. R. Preston. As many as nineteen young carpenters and laborers were employed in its construction in 1937. Boy Scouts assisted with concrete work and caulking. The cypress logs were harvested in the Great Pocomoke Swamp. The building was provided with electricity, and a "wagon wheel" chandelier was made by industrial arts students at the Federalsburg high school to light the main room. The total cost of construction was $1,431, of which Federal funds covered $1,025.

The log cabin design was popular in parks associated with New Deal "alphabet" programs such as the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) in the 1930s.

The cabin is located in Chambers Park, an 18-acre municipal park located near Federalsburg's downtown business district. Thomas H. Chambers, Mayor of Federalsburg from 1915 to 1947, donated the land for the park in several parcels beginning in 1922. He also diverted his Mayoral salary to the town for park maintenance and development.

The log cabin in the park was a project of the National Youth Administration, which was part of President Roosevelt's New Deal program for stimulating the economy and ending the Great Depression. Another recovery program, the Works Progress Administration (WPA), developed the rest of Chambers Park and the lake.

In the 1930s, the concept of providing a recreational center for local youth was innovative on the Eastern Shore. The cabin, designated NYA park improvement project number 1536, was said to be the first project of its type in the nation. It served as a model for similar projects in Hurlock (Dorchester County) and Crisfield (Somerset County).

The cabin was dedicated on May 15, 1937. The dedication program for the Log Cabin NYA Youth Center stated, "It is hoped that all of the young people in this community will make full use of this building and see it as a meeting place where inspiration and character shall abound." It was intended to serve a wide variety of youth organizations, including Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Cathedral Builders, Excelsior Girls Club, 4-H Clubs and Civic Clubs.

The cabin was used through the late 1960s for Scout meetings, church groups, family picnics, birthday parties and reunions and for a variety of community functions including firemen's carnivals, parades, and games. Use of the park declined in the 1970s and the cabin fell into disrepair. In the early 1990s the Town removed the rear extension, replaced the deteriorating brick chimney with a stone chimney, and installed a new wood shingle roof.
