DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Hazel Green Academy's campus consists of thirty-two verdant acres on the Red River's north side in Hazel Green, Kentucky (1970 pop. 600). The school is at the small community's extreme south, and a proper disjunction is brought about by the learning institution's elevated site above the town.

Immediately south of the campus entrance is a faculty residence (see photo 2) built in the early 1900's. This two-story frame house has a recessed porch spanning the front, and a shed dormer above accomodates four windows. The gabled roof's eaves extend widely on the sides. Slight alterations have been made to furnish outside entrance to the second level.

Southwest of the faculty residence is the Ford Industrial Building (see photo 4), a frame building consisting of a two and one-half story main section and a one-story wing. Both the main building and its wing are covered with hipped roofs, and both rest on a stone basement fully exposed on the east. Since its construction in 1908 the Industrial Building's exterior has not been altered. Arts and crafts are taught here.

Opposite the Ford Building is Pearre Hall, a girls' dormitory built in 1901 (see photo 5). The building is shaped like a cross, and construction is of brick masonry—the entire structure resting on a stone basement. The main entrance is on the southwest end. All sides have a pediment pierced by a fanlight, and other classical revival elements include pilaster strips and heavy stone lintels above windows.

Near the southern end of the campus is a second early-twentieth-century frame building used continuously as faculty housing (see photo 8). The front is three bays wide—the entrance bay being emphasized by an imbricated gable and protected by a small shed-roofed porch.

The Boys' Dormitory (see photo 9) is a two-story rectangular building built in 1908. Construction is of stuccoed masonry. The main facade of eleven bays is regularly arranged, and the building is void of embellishment.

Northeast of the Boys' Dormitory are two one-story faculty residences built in the 1960's. A third such building of the same date is immediately southwest of the boys' dormitory. Other structures located on the campus include: the gymnasium constructed in 1935 (see photo 3), the 1930's Administration/Classroom building (see photo 6) and the seven-building farm complex (see photo 7 and site location map). One shed-roofed service building (see photo 10) from the early twentieth century also remains. The laundry facilities are housed in a small 1952 brick building east of the Administration/Classroom Building. Beside it is the 1960 Industrial Arts Building, a brick structure of modest dimensions. A shallow valley between the gymnasium and the boys' dormitory contains a four-court tennis facility. Installed in recent years, the tennis court is indicative of Hazel Green's attempt to introduce mountain youth to a variety of activities,

The nominated area consists of the individual buildings (faculty residence, Ford Industrial Building, Pearre Hall, frame building, and Boy's Dormitory) and the land on which they sit.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Hazel Green Academy is significant in being one of the few surviving missionary religious/educational institutions still operating and continuing to provide service which in earlier days provided the only type of formal learning opportunities for many people in Eastern Kentucky. Under the auspices of the United Christian Missionary Society of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) since 1920, it has provided a chance for the expansion of knowledge for a large number of the people in the mountains who would otherwise have had no possibility for formal organized instruction whatever. It is also interesting to note that this institution has a heritage and a tradition which precedes U.C.M.S. ownership and leadership by some forty years dating back to 1880.<sup>1</sup>

Hazel Green as a community was originally settled in the nineteenth century primarily by Virginians who had travelled north from the Cumberland Gap or directly west across from the Tug and Levisa forks of the Big Sandy River.<sup>2</sup> Although an old state highway passed through Hazel Green from the Big Sandy area to Mt. Sterling and the Bluegrass section of Kentucky at the time of its settlement, as the years went by Hazel Green became more and more isolated. Even when the railroads finally came through eastern Kentucky, Hazel Green was separated from the nearest station at Helechawa by a road "eight miles long--five on the level and three up and down through mud holes."

By 1880, the need for improvements in transportation, health care, local government, and education was obvious to the important people in the area who could plan and act to bring such changes about. With regard to education, one such plan involved the establishment of an academy, proposed by Mrs. Lou Mize, wife of state senator William Oldham Mize. "Uncle Billy" Mize then secured the support of two local businessmen, with each of the three men donating $500 toward the construction of the original school buildings. Despite the interest and contributions of these three men they received scant support from the community.<sup>3</sup> As a result of their efforts the school opened in the fall of 1880 and continued until the fall of 1886. During 1885 and 1886 the executive committee of the Christian Woman's Board of Mission of Kentucky, with the advice of John I. Rogers, negotiated with the officers of the school for its control and management. A provisional arrangement was made under which J.W. McGarvey, at that time, a Professor at the College of the Bible in Lexington, Kentucky,<sup>4</sup> and R. T. Mathews, representing the women of Kentucky, were to act as proprietors and trustees in the management of the academy. This joint management of the school continued through the school year of 1886-1887 and to May 1888. Shortly after, however, the Academy was to become the sole property of the Christian Womans' Board of Missions. In 1920 the Academy came under the direct auspices of the United Christian Missionary Society, an arm of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) rather than simply the Womans' group and has received financial support from that organization since that time.<sup>5</sup>

It has been said that Hazel Green Academy served an area of over six counties in eastern Kentucky.<sup>6</sup> Kentucky public schools at that time, in that area, were described as very poor because the taxable value of property in the mountain counties of this section of Kentucky was so low as to make it impossible to maintain public schools of standard grade regardless of the quality of Kentucky laws affecting education. It was noted by the U.C.M.S. publication that although there were 360 public schools in the six counties aforementioned, the buildings with a few exceptions were poor and the equipment meagre. Despite the existence of a high school in each county, the condition of the roads and the prevailing poverty of the people made it impossible for many of the young people to attend them with any degree of regularity. It was for such reasons as this that the U.C.M.S. made its plea for continued and increased support of institutions such as Hazel Green Academy because the position of the U.C.M.S. was that perhaps the greatest need of the youth of the area was not education itself, but education obtained in a Christian atmosphere.<sup>7</sup>

By 1928 Hazel Green Academy owned approximately forty acres of land. In 1924 a river bottom tract was purchased for the purpose of increasing the tillable acreage. Although this land was described as poor, broken, and hard to cultivate, like most land in the mountain county, it did serve the needs of the school for a campus and furnished some employment for boys willing to work to help to pay for their education. By this means a portion of the food needs of the institution were provided. At that time the complex included the four buildings which served the strictly educational needs of the school, three residences which furnished homes for teachers, and three barns and two smaller buildings which served the agricultural needs of the institution were evaluated by the U.C.M.S.

The oldest of the surviving main buildings of the Hazel Green Academy is Pearre Hall, the Academy building dedicated in 1902 and named for Mrs. Caroline Neville Pearre, the founder of the Christian Womans' Board of Missions. It was used as a classroom building until 1930.<sup>8</sup> Today it houses approximately thirty-five girls and contains a central dining hall and kitchen.

Another building which still survives is the Helen E. Moses Memorial Building, completed in 1908.<sup>9</sup> Named for Mrs. Moses, who served for many years as president of the Christian Womans' Board of Missions, it continues to be used as a dormitory for boys. In 1928 it contained a suite for the superintendent and "comfortably" accommodated approximately 75 boys.<sup>10</sup> At the present time it houses approximately 45 boys.<sup>11</sup> Complete interior renovation was begun in 1968.

One of the most prominent of the older buildings is the Ford Industrial Building which was also completed in 1908.<sup>12</sup> It was the gift of Mrs. E. L. Ford and her two daughters of Detroit, Michigan.<sup>13</sup> It later housed the power, heating, and lighting plants, the forging and carpentry rooms, the machinery used in manual training (Industrial Arts), and domestic science (Home Economics) rooms. At the present time it contains the music room, the weaving room, the science room, the pottery room, the printing room, the radio rooms, the maintenance shops, and the heating plant.<sup>14</sup>

Through the years the relationship between the town and the Academy has grown deep with tradition and mutual aid. For twenty years, from 1933 to 1953, the second floor of the boys' dormitory served as a twelve-bed hospital which checked ill, delivered babies, and performed all of the area's surgery.<sup>15</sup> By the late 1950s, Hazel Green Academy became the sponsor and base for a county bookmobile servicing 36 schools.

Throughout the years, Hazel Green Academy has prepared many young people for future service to the church, the state, the nation, and even the world.<sup>16</sup> Because the Academy has traditionally believed in the dignity of work and considers good work habits an integral part of each students' total educational development, every student has always been asked to contribute a certain number of hours per week to the student labor program.<sup>17</sup> In 1963 Hazel Green celebrated its twentieth Annual Homecoming.<sup>18</sup> Although its campus is today somewhat changed because farming operations were totally discontinued in 1964-65,<sup>19</sup> it still contains thirty-two acres of beautiful rolling hills, trees, walkways and shrubs. Its mission and its purpose remain constant. As one of its graduates who has served in India, said, "Hazel Green Academy did not teach us how to make money; it taught us how to make a life."<sup>20</sup>
