DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building is located on a ½ acre plot of land. The principal structure is about 36' long and 33 wide on the foundation of rough granite blocks and field stones. It is a 12 story wooden frame construction. It reaches a height at the peak of about 35' from the foundation timbers. Both sides hold three 8' high and 4' wide windows with 24 lights each. The wondows are flanked by shutters and a wooden slab fan forms a decorative area over each window. In addition to the principal structure there is the addition, on the front end of an entrance pavilion about 18' long and 9' deep. with a 4' x 8' window on each side. The pavilion rises again from a stone foundation reaching a height at its peak of about 30'. The pavilion's roof timbering supports a square tower upon which rises a bell tower topped with a small cupola. The tower complex also is supported in part by roof timbers of the principal structure. A weather vane on an iron shaft spire completes the pointer to God. The meeting house is sheathed with clapboards and is painted white. It has a single brick chimney in the rear. The present day building is, for all purposes, the 1830 building. It is not in good repair. It is open only during summer months. The Cape Elizabeth Town Office handles the schedule. The roof is water tight. The building needs to have many of the clapboards renailed. Some clapboards have been replaced. Overall it needs painting. The interior contains the original box pews. The interior is plain. Today the church is supplied by electricity, but in other years it has been illuminated by Kerosene lamps. From the center of the ceiling there remains suspended today an interesting Kerosene fueled chandelier.
