DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building was erected in 1910 as a residence for Benson Dillon Billinghurst, Superintendent of Washoe County's Schools. It is a woodframe structure, two stories in height and is located on Evans Avenue near the University of Nevada. The design and construction indicate an unusual sensitivity on the part of the architect-builder and the building is a perfect example of the bungalow style of architecture developed at the turn of the century. The interior is stained pine, varnished and rubbed in five successive coats, and is a remarkable example of finish not found in modern construction. Most of the electric light fixtures are original and the bookcases, glass doors and mirrors are beveled.

The building has lap cedar and shingle siding, a gable composition shingle roof and a partial stone and concrete foundation. Interior finish is plaster with wood walls and ceilings and the floors are of hardwood. The first floor has a living room, den, formal dining area, kitchen dining area, utility room wand one-half bath. The floor area for both stories totals 2,302 square feet.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and one bath. The bedrooms have wall-to-wall carpeted floors, plaster walls and ceilings. On this level there is an enclosed porch of approximately 77 square feet.

The kitchen has been modernized, but retains the original birch and pine cabinets. There is a full basement with a concrete floor. A 544 square-foot triangular section at the rear of the lot has been taken for Interstate 80 highway construction. The freeway is depressed in the area and the rear property line is at the top of a long cut. The property is located in a multiple dwelling zone where one living unit is allowed per 1,000 square feet of land area.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Benson Dillon Billinghurst Home is of state historical significance because of its association with Benson Dillon Billinghurst. a renowned Nevada educator. From 1908 up to the time of his death in December of 1935, he served as the Superintendent of Washoe County's Schools. His name and his influence are associated with many reforms and innovations in Nevada education. He was the first educator in the state to introduce the junior high school concept and under his administration five such schools were built and put into operation. He was also a leader and an innovator in industrial. home and commercial education in the state's schools. Among the other educational reforms he was associated with were the following: the establishment of the State Textbook Commission, laws providing free textbooks for school children. compulsory attendance laws, laws requiring medical examination of school children and laws dealing with better ways to finance education. He was also involved in raising the educational qualifications of Nevada teachers and in curriculum reform. For many years he lectured on educational matters at the University of Nevada.

Washoe County was the largest and best-financed school district in the state during Billinghurst's superintendency and the programs put into operation there were later adopted by other school districts. Billinghurst himself was often consulted by educators all over the state regarding their own educational programs and by legislators and governors on a wide range of educational matters. His good relations with students, parents, teachers, community leaders and political decision-makers smoothed the way for many reforms which otherwise would have met with a degree of opposition.

In 1933 the U.S. Department of Education rated Nevada's schools as second only to those of New York in quality and educational standards. This status was generally attributed to B.D. Billinghurst's work, vision and qualities of leadership.
