windows with stone lintels on the 1st floor and coupled windows in stone surrounds on the upper floors.

The middle bays have single, paned windows in brick surrounds on the lst floor. The upper floors have larger, coupled windows in stone surrounds with raised brick spandrals between the floors. The 3rd floor windows have stone surrounds.

The end bays project and have 2 coupled windows flanking a decorative stone panel on the 1st floor. The 1st and 2nd story windows are articulated by decorative stone spandrels. The 5 coupled windows of the upper floors are unified by the stone surround. A decorative brick and stone spandrel vertically articulates the windows.

The side facades have an entry marked "Girls" and "Boys". Each entry is arched with classical adorment, A large window in a stone surround surrmounts the entry. This window is flanked by smaller windows. The side bays have 3 windows on the 1st floor. The stone surround is set outside of a panel of chevron-patterned brick work and a cartouche. The upper stories have no windows, the wall surface is decorated with a large panel of concentric rectangular brick bands with stone accents. The dark brown, pressed brick structure is capped by an extended cornice surmounted by a parapet with a stone coping.
