The Reformed Dutch Church of Wyckoff
Bergen, New Jersey

DESCRIPTION

The Reformed Dutch Church of Wyckoff is a Reformed Dutch church built of local stone in 1806 that stands surrounded by a cemetery on a 4.56 acre lot along the East side of Wyckoff Avenue (historically Main Street) in the Township of Wyckoff, Bergen County, New Jersey, the building and its setting as shown in Photo #1. The property measures approx. 825 feet along Wyckoff Avenue by approx. 262 feet deep, known as Block 245, Lot 6, as shown on the Tax Map of the Township of Wyckoff, latest revision January, 2000, partial copy attached. The original Church property is described as being 1/2 acre on which the Church was built, bought in 1805 from Aaron Ackerman and Albert Van Vorhees for $7.50. A search for the original deed in the Bergen County Hall of Records produced the earliest recorded deed to the Reformed Dutch Church of Wyckoff to be dated 1836, from John Van Vorhees and his wife Sally, for the purchase price of $21. Obviously, this is not the original property but a later acquisition. An 1898 fire in the Church resulted in the loss of most earlier Church records and documents.

In addition to the Church, the balance of the site is the earliest section of the Church's Cemetery, which can be seen in photos #2, 5, and 6. No other buildings are located on the subject property, except for a cobblestone mausoleum. The mausoleum measures about 7' wide by about 12' long and is about 10' high overall, with a slightly pitched gable roof of cast stone. See photo #20. Although not documented, it appears to be dated from the early 20th century. Additional properties of the Church to the South and East are used for the Church School and Offices, and are not included in this Nomination, having been added in 1953. The Church School and Office building is shown in Photo #1 and the total properties owned by the Church are shown on the partial Tax Map attached.

The original Church building, which can be seen in Photos #2, 3, 4 & 6, in plan measures 46' - 8" wide by 56' - 3" deep, as shown in the HABS NJ-338 drawings c. 1936, copy attached, which drawings should be consulted for other details of construction. The original 1806 building can be clearly seen in the HABS drawings, which drawings pre-date the 1955 addition described below; however, the 1865 Alcove addition is shown in those drawings. The south facing front facade is 3 bays, the side facades are 2 bays. The central tower on the south front measures 16' - 1-1/2" wide and projects 4'-1" from the front wall. The overall height from grade to the tip of the weathervane is 83'. The height from floor to roof ridge is 36' 6". The stone Tower rises about 8' above the roof ridge, has an intermediate belt course, above which is a round arched louvered opening, and is capped with a projecting wood cornice. Above the stone Tower is a non-original octagonal wood louvered domed belfry with a roof in an inverted cyma recta or cymantium (candle snuffer) profile, topped by a ball and weathervane. The original tall steeple and spire were replaced in 1829, when struck by lightning. The present bell was installed in 1903.

All window openings are pointed Gothic styled brick arches. Present windows are memorial "art glass" (painted glass) in heavy "Gothic" styled tracery, installed between 1913 and 1930, typical interior views shown in Photos #15 and 16; typical exterior view shown in Photo # 17. No documentation of the original window style has been found; however, the HABS Drawings depict the "original Rose Window", in the Tower over the entry doors, as multi-paned wood divided lights, which would be typical for the period and style. The present roofing material is asphalt shingles; however, the HABS Drawings (1936) indicate wood shingles at that time, which would be typical for the original material.

The floor structure consists of 3 interior dry laid stone foundation walls running north and south, except for the later installed furnace room in the approx. center of the dirt floored crawlspace. A column supported Balcony extends across the front (South) wall and along the full length of both sides. The flooring is wide-plank boards covered by narrow oak strip flooring possibly installed in 1925 when the Ladies Aid Society installed new flooring and pews. (At the time of this writing, the Church is in the process of repairing the floor structure, removing the oak flooring and refinishing the wide plank flooring). Interior walls are plaster, with wood wainscoting. The original floor plan had 84 pews on the main level and 24 pews on the Balcony or Gallery level.

In 1829, stoves were installed, prior to which the congregation relied on foot warmers. Also in that year, "lighting" was installed, possibly referring to gas lighting. In 1845, "extensive repairs" were made, including a new pulpit, aisles carpeted, inside blinds on windows, new stoves installed, at a cost of $216.32.

In 1865, an extensive "remodeling" was undertaken, with the Church repaired, windows altered, floors repaired, and pews remodeled". Church records report that the doors were removed from the pews and used as facing for the gallery rail. Also, the alcove for the pulpit was installed. A decision was reached to have new graves located at least 20 feet from the alcove, to permit possible future additions. This work was performed by W. B. Van Benschoten at a cost of $3,127.88.

Originally, there was only the central double door entry, which is recessed in a brick round arch, with an arched transom. The 2 side doors were originally windows, with the doors installed in 1868, "when the galleries were lowered". When the side doors were installed, the side vestibules required removal of pews in those areas.

In 1906, additional improvements were made. A furnace was installed under the Church, the "platform" was modernized, vestibules installed, choir loft built (raised?), new pulpit installed, and a new pipe organ installed at a cost of $1,700.

In 1909, the Rockland Electric Co. installed electric service for "50 incandescent lamps of 16 candlepower. In 1913, the first memorial "art glass" windows were installed, with most others by 1915; the last one in 1930. The metal ceiling was installed in 1915 as a gift of the Ladies' Aid Society. In 1916, a new pipe organ was installed by the Master Organ Co. of Paterson, NJ, at a cost of $1,800. In 1922, a new furnace was installed; in 1924, a new floor and pews were installed, also gifts of the Ladies' Aid Society.

A May 16, 1952, article in the NEWS, the local newspaper, wrote a piece about the Church's 150 anniversary, stating, "the congregation intends to remove the 'modernization' attempts of former well intentioned worshippers and restore the church to its original beauty". In 1955, a rear or North Wing was added, measuring 40' wide by 30' deep, with basement. This Wing, which can be seen in Photos #3, 4 and 5, increased the size of the Chancel, added pews for an additional 125 seats, added rooms for the use of the Choir and the Pastors, and relocated the Choir from the rear of the loft to the front of the Church. A new lectern, pulpit and new carpet were installed, the pipe organ installed in 1916 was reconditioned by the Austin Organ Co. of Hartford, Conn., and rooms for the Pastors and Choir added. The exterior is rock-faced random ashlar brownstone, with clapboard in the gable end on the north side, in which is located a central entrance door, with a pointed arch transom, flanked by pointed arch windows.

The present interior has been altered through the years, with changes made in 1829, 1845, 1865, 1906, 1913, 1915, 1924, and 1955. Except for the 1955 Addition, which enlarged the original sanctuary, the changes affected only finishes in the original section of the building. These changes were for "modernization" and expansion to accommodate a continually growing congregation, not within the context of liturgical changes; therefore, the changes would not be considered historic. Views of the present interior are shown in Photos #7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

SIGNIFICANCE

The Dutch Reformed Church of Wyckoff is locally significant for its architecture, typical for vernacular Early Republic period, Federal style Dutch Reformed churches, and similar churches of other denominations, built in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Although originally, and currently, owned by a religious institution and used for religious purposes, it is a religious property deriving its primary significance from architectural distinction and resulting historical importance. The Dutch Reformed Church of Wyckoff should also be recognized for its role in the early development of the communal life of the Township of Wyckoff, New Jersey, and its surrounding area, serving also as the local meeting place for not only religious purposes, but also for social, educational, recreational and governmental purposes, as did other early churches in other areas. The Dutch Reformed Church of Wyckoff is an important remnant of the Dutch Reformed Church denomination, serving the Wyckoff area, Bergen County and northern New Jersey. The Dutch Reformed Church was the earliest organized church in the New York metropolitan area.

The Dutch Reformed Church (now split into the Reformed Church in America and the Christian Reformed Church since the early 19th century as the result of liturgical differences) came with the earliest of the colonists, which Church was the colonists' Church in Europe, to what was then New Netherlands, 1614-24. In 1628, the Dutch West India Company had sent over the first ordained dominie (minister), Rev. Jonas Michaelius, to the island of Mannahata (Manhattan). He solicited pledges and built the Church in the Fort, the first Reformed Church in this country.

The first Dutch Reformed Church in New Jersey was at Bergen (Jersey City) built in 1660. Hackensack was a "preaching station" in 1682. Acquakanock (Passaic) dates from 1693; Tappan, NY from 1694; Bellville (near Newark) from 1700; and Fairfield from 1720. In 1705, there were only 34 Dutch churches and 12 ministers. In 1663, the English had captured New Jersey and the Dutch lost control of their colonies. The following year the northern portion of New Jersey was given by the Duke of York to two Englishmen, Sir George Carteret and Lord Berkely, and later controlled by the Lords Proprietors, one of whom was the Earl of Perth who gave the first deeds in the vicinity of Ponds (Oakland). The Johnson and Willcox Patent given by him extends from the Big Rock at Small Lots (Glen Rock) to a mile beyond Ponds Church.

In 1700, there were not more than ten families in the vicinity of Ponds and about five in Pompton. The Van Allens bought 600 acres in what is now Oakland. In 1720, John and William Van Voor Haze bought 500 acres lying in Wikehoff (Wyckoff), plus 50 more acres given them for roads, from New York City merchants. About this time, families named Van Blarcom, Youmanns, Winters, Courter, Young, Storms, Ackerman, Quackenbush, Van Gelder, Pulisfelt (Pulis), and Bogart moved into the area. All of these families became prominent in the Wyckoff area and the Church. Although many of these families were not actually of Dutch decent, and were from other parts of northern Europe, the Dutch religion and culture assimilated these settlers.

8. SIGNIFICANCE (continued)

In the 18th century and until this building was constructed in 1806, the nearest church to the area of present day Wyckoff was the now non-extant (later replaced) Old Ponds Church in the Borough of Oakland. From 1800 to 1839, the area was part of the Classis of Bergen, which was the formal regional (covering the equivalent of about a county-wide area) governing body of the Dutch Reformed Church, which body was responsible for the planning of expansion of the denomination, and determining the needs and locations of new Dutch Reformed churches. In those days, the parish of the Wyckoff district extended from Wyckoff to Preakness (Passaic County), which area was being rapidly populated; therefore, the parish decided to build a new church building. When Judge J. A. Van Voorhees, A. Stevenson, and others living in the Wyckoff area had then recently united with the church, they wished to have the new church located in Wyckoff to avoid the long trip to Ponds Church in Oakland. The Wyckoff area was approved by the Classis for a new church, and a 1/2 acre area of the present site, on which the Church is located, was purchased in 1805 for $7.50. By 1806, the present edifice was completed at a cost of $4,205.00.

This is one of the few stone churches in Bergen County for which the names of the masons, carpenters, and other builders are known, pursuant to the History of the Wyckoff Reformed Church, 1806-1931 by the Reverend George C. Heneveld, as referenced in the Bibliography hereof.

The building is one of the 8 extant Federal Period stone churches in Bergen County, which churches were built between 1791-1819. The others are the South Schraalenburgh Church in Bergenfield (Inv. No. 0203-4); the North Church in Dumont (0210-1); The Dutch Reformed Church of Hackensack (0223-5); The Reformed Dutch Church at Pascack in Park Ridge (0247-10); The Dutch Reformed Church in the English Neighborhood in Ridgely (0249-10); The Old Paramus Reformed Church in Ridgewood (0251-); and the New North Reformed Low Dutch Church in Upper Saddle River (0263-).

All of these churches are examples of a vernacular interpretation of the Wren-Gibbs church type, consisting of a rectangular-in-plan building with 3 bay gabled front facade, and with a central partially projecting square-in-plan tower rising in stages. This building type is typical of the Reformed Dutch Church buildings erected in New Jersey from the late 18th century into the early 19th century. According to historian Fred Bogart, the design of the Hackensack church building, which is the oldest of the Bergen County group with a 1791 construction date, was patterned after the 1773 Old Bergen Church in what is now Jersey City, which church in turn utilizes the basic design of the North Church erected in 1767 on William Street in Lower Manhattan. Although typically Federal Period buildings have rectangular, round arched, or elliptically-arched openings, all of the Bergen County Federal Period stone churches have Gothic pointed arch window and door openings, and these openings appear to be original parts of the building designs. Precedent for pointed arches in an otherwise Federal Period Wren-Gibbs design can be seen in Second Trinity Church, constructed in Manhattan in 1788-90 (no longer extant). The pointed arch, as well as the Wren-Gibbs church type configuration, is not unique to the stone churches, and can be seen in the Ramapo Reformed Church in Mahwah, which building is of frame construction, and dates to the early 19 century.

The Reformed Dutch Church of Wyckoff is a typical example of this vernacular regional architectural type, with 3 bay front facade and central projecting tower. It has the type's pointed arch openings. A feature of this church, unique among the Bergen County church group, is its coursed rubble fieldstone walls with brown sandstone trim. The other buildings in the group have sandstone walls, although the Upper Saddle River Church has a good bit of fieldstone in its walls. The original Wyckoff Church building is one of the smallest in the group. It is almost square in plan and has two bay sides rather than the more usual three bays. In massing, the Wyckoff Church belongs to a subgroup of the Bergen County group. In this subgroup the buildings have taller and more slender proportions (for example, see the North Church in Dumont (0210-2); the Old Paramus Reformed Church in Ridgewood (0251-); and the South Schraalenburgh Church in Bergenfield (0203-4). The height of the Wyckoff Church was considerably lowered when its original tall spire was replaced in 1829 by the present octagonal cupola, as the result of being struck by lightning.

This was the first church building in Wyckoff, and was originally known as the Reformed Dutch Church of Wyckoff. According to an anonymous hand written note on the back of an old photo, "The brown stones at the (building) corners were carted from the Red Mills Quarry at Arcola, (Paramus) NJ on Maywood Avenue in the Red Cut. Each farmer when coming home with empty wagons after delivering his produce in Hoboken and would bring back a load of Red Stone". The walls of the building are constructed of local fieldstone.

Considerable financial difficulties for the Church began in 1811 when the pastor of both the Ponds and Wyckoff Churches and the congregations began to argue over salary matters. Eventually, the pastor sued and the property of the Wyckoff Church was mortgaged in 1817 to three parties for the $750 debt. Continued non-payment of debt forced foreclosure on both Churches and they were sold at public auction at a Sheriff's sale held in Hackensack on March 25, 1820. The Wyckoff Church was sold for $71.00 to John Pulis, and the Ponds Church sold to Martin Van Houten for $9.00. The owner of the Ponds Church, however, let the congregation enter and hold services; but the owner of the Wyckoff Church refused entry and services were held outdoors. On August 21, 1821, Pulis deeded the Church back to the Consistory (the local Church governing body) after all the debts were met. The Church was incorporated in 1824, when it separated from the Ponds Church. Aside from the unusual fact the Wyckoff Church was privately owned at one time, the remainder of the Church's history was rather standard; however, the history of the Wyckoff Church, as with other churches in Bergen County and Northern New Jersey, stand as symbols of the settlement of these areas, and the early development of the communities in which they are located.

A particularly interesting major alteration of the Wyckoff Church was the installation of 2 side entrance doors replacing original windows in the South or Front facade, when the galleries were lowered in 1865. This alteration has a noteworthy place within the history of the building type, since the South Schraalenburgh Church in Bergenfield (0203-4), the Old Paramus Reformed Church in Ridgewood (0251-), and the Saddle River Reformed Church in Upper Saddle River (0263-) also underwent similar renovations as their congregations grew in the last half of the 19th century.

As previously noted, the original Church property was 1/2 acre; however a deed search produced the earliest recorded deed of 1836, which was a later small property addition. The 1876 Walker Atlas of Bergen County, the has the earliest map found to show the Church and its property, the extent of which property is shown on the attached map superimposing the property of 1876 onto the current tax map. In 1846, the majority of the land upon which the cemetery and modern Office, Church School, Hall, and Counseling Center are located, was acquired. The associated Wyckoff Reformed Cemetery on the South, East, and North sides of the Church, has historically, and currently, functioned as the burial ground for members of the Congregation. Important people in local and regional history, including many of those mentioned earlier herein, are buried there.

"Five of the eight Federal Period stone churches in Bergen County are on the State and National Registers of Historic Places, or listing is pending. Only the Wyckoff, Park Ridge, and Ridgefield buildings have not received this status which they too merit" (NJ Historic Sites Inventory No. 0270-23).

As previously noted, the Department of the Interior selected the Wyckoff Church for inclusion in the Historic American Buildings Survey in 1936. Copies of the resulting drawings, data sheets and photo are attached and made part hereof.

The nominated property includes the entire parcel of original Church property of 1/2 acre, on which the Wyckoff Reformed Church building, and the oldest part of the Church Cemetery active through the 19th and early 20th centuries, is located. The boundaries are definitive, being a distinctive separate lot for identification purposes.

Additional Church properties are later 20th century additions and contain modern Church buildings and the newest section of the Cemetery, none of which are historically significant, and, therefore, not eligible for listing on the New Jersey and National Registers.

LEGEND.

All walls and Ceilings are covered with stamped metal and all dimensions are taken to these surfaces, shown here in dotted lines. The present pipe columns on Auditorium floor as shown on the plans are not indicated here, but the original wood columns are shown, based on those that were found stored away elsewhere in the building. The book rest above the gallery fascia of the choir to the south is modern and is shown in dotted lines. The present floor level of Choir is shown dotted, and the original lower level solid, the latter being in all probability the former condition. The modern Vestibule doors on the Auditorium level are not indicated but the original ones shown in design based on the existing door leading from the 2nd floor of Tower to choir, which is original and probably typical.
